Wall mural project for #VoicelessBangladeshis

Public Relations students at the University of Liberal Arts Bangladesh (ULAB) created wall murals reminding people to think about the lessons we are teaching our future generation. "A Voiceless Bangladeshi" is anybody who has something to say but is afraid to talk about it, or doesn't know how to, or doesn't have a platform.

This time they have raised the importance of talking to children about recognising and dealing with issues like bullying, child molestation, choosing future paths and parental dispute. However, not all the wall murals emphasise difficult issues; a few simply remind us the joy of sharing and saying thank you.

The #VoicelessBangladeshi project is part of a project based learning initiative by Naima Alam for the "Introduction to Public Relations" course. Students take a social issue and work on creating an awareness campaign for that issue through different social media like Facebook, Instagram etc. The last wing of the awareness campaign is to leave a mark in a public place through a wall mural.
