

NBR for more scrutiny of imports

UNB, Dhaka

The National Board of Revenue (NBR) has asked all its customs stations to increase their vigilance regarding quality of imported goods, their description, HS Code, quantity measurement and declaration of duty structure.

The NBR gave the instruction as it suspects that some anomalies are being exploited to deprive the government of the actual revenue it should earn from import of goods.

Besides, the revenue collecting authority also asked its officials at all customs stations to remain alert regarding duty evasion by the C&F agents, freight-forwards and shipping agents.

Recently, NBR member Farid Uddin sent a letter to all commissioners of the customs stations in this regard.

The letter states that despite repeated warnings, many responsible persons did not give attention to the above mentioned issues and as a result "revenue collection, trade and environment are getting adversely affected".

The letter mentioned that under-invoicing and over-invoicing are great problems in the declaration of imported goods. The letter declares that it is one of the main duties of the customs stations to examine the import duty of the imported items.

Duty management has to be increased on imported items with a tariff higher than 80 percent, as in most cases the invoice price is stated lower than the imported price. The letter asked to check the price of the same item in other customs stations and take steps accordingly.

Besides, the letter also directed stern action against dishonest officials.

It also directed the customs stations to re-examine the records of the items that have been imported through the respective station in the last two or three years.

According to the NBR officials, the duty evasion incidents through under-invoicing and over-invoicing are done mainly while importing food items, sanitary items, fabrics, glass sheet, steel sheet, and electrical and electronics items.

Porters were the only resort in moving luggage of airline passengers at Shah Amanat International Airport in Chittagong city yesterday as numerous trucks and motorcycles blocked off the airport road while on way to a reception organised by Nagorik Committee at the airport for newly elected city corporation Mayor AJM Nasir Uddin who had arrived there after taking oath in Dhaka.

Indian rice forcing Pabna mills to shut down

65 percent already closed, 800 more facing the same fate; 20,000 workers in dire straits

UNB, Pabna

With the rice imported from neighbouring India selling at lower prices, the demand for the local varieties is on the decline, pushing 65 percent of rice mills in Pabna into closure, say owners.

Around 800 rice mills in the district, including Ishwardi, a hub for the factories, are also facing shutdown for the slump in sales of local rice varieties.

This has brought many rice mill owners to their knees, while some 20,000 workers are living amid extreme hardship.

Talking to the news agency, mill owners said that as the rice sale had fallen sharply in the last two months, they had to count a loss of Tk 15,000-30,000 from milling a truck of rice.

Sadek Ali Biswas, an owner in Ishwardi, said they did not dare husk rice anymore. As a result, about 20,000 mill owners, rice traders, and workers are sitting idle now in Ishwardi, he said.

Sadek said almost half the rice mill workers in Pabna were females.

Due to the transport blockade, a huge stock of local varieties remains unsold, while low-priced Indian rice has flooded the local markets, bringing down the prices of local rice even further.

Traders say the Indian-Swarna variety now sells at Tk 595-600 per maund against the previous Tk 700-750. Falls were also seen in Sumon-Swarna, BRRI-49, BRRI-39 and Parija varieties.

Mill owners observed that the situation has occurred as the government imports and exports rice at the same time.

One sack of Indian rice sells for Tk 1,400-1,600, or Tk 28-29 per kg, while the local ones sell at Tk 1,700-2,000 each sack, or Tk 35-37 a kg.

Law drafted for SC judge without the use of any law.

"In this respect, the parliament has to issue a show cause notice to the judge if any allegation is received against him or her. After getting an explanation from the judge, the parliament will hear arguments from the complainant and judge, and then it will take a decision about the accused judge," he added.

The law minister said the parliament will determine the procedure for removing a judge, upholding his or her natural justice.

He said the government will formulate a law fixing the specific rules for removal of judges so that there is no inconsistencies between its rules and the procedure which might be determined by the parliament.

The parliament on September 17 last year passed the 16th constitutional amendment bill, empowering itself amid widespread criticism of the ability to impeach SC judges for "misbehaviour and incapacity".

President Abdul Hamid on September 22 last year gave his assent to the bill. With the president signing the bill, the chief justice-led Supreme Judicial Council system that was in place for 35 years to impeach SC judges ceased to exist.

they fired the workers, but said the orders came from high-ups.

Meanwhile, the other factory workers said the authorities suddenly shut down the factory.

Shahadat Hosen, production manager, said the management could not run the factory due to a shortage of work-orders. Police were deployed in the area and at the factories.
