

NOT-ANIMES THAT PEOPLE MISTAKE FOR ANIMES

ARASHI-SON

Did you ever wake up thinking "that anime I watched really grinds my gears"? Well, I've felt that way too many times to do nothing, so I finally put all my frustrations to pen and paper and this is what I have to say.

NARUTO:

Ask yourself one question, "What is a ninja?" If your answer to this is "a fox-kin who wears an orange jumper and practices jutsus everywhere", then you should go and watch Ninja Hattori.

DING NING NING NING NING

See? Ninja Hattori is always the better ninja than Naruto. Why? He insults Naruto in every single episode. What does the fox say?

That's right Naruto. You got owned by Ninja Hattori.

what is this worst polygon a person can ask for turtleneck to hide hideous neckbeard and absence of an adam's apple

real ninjas have curves

no stealth since fluorescent orange jumper clearly visible even at night

can't even see him such a stealth ninja practices useless jutsus that won't teach him how to do the useful things in life like planting crops and running away from tigers way more life-like 12 year-old girls there.

AVATAR:

This is not an anime, even I know that. However, there are people in the online anime community who think it is. Well, it isn't! Avatar is a manga! Just because the characters have big eyes and cool blue hair doesn't make it an anime, it could be a manga as well. I just wanted that to be cleared up.

LEGO MOVIE:

hoodies are for cool kids and gangsters and presidents

a cool and awesome sword that can cut down crops and tigers alike

BEN 10:

This doesn't even deserve to be called anime. What kind of anime supports cross-species dressing? Each episode shows a boy named Ben cross dressing into an alien. What kind of black magic is that? He basically spits on his human heritage every time. What does this teach the children? On the other hand, anime such as Hayate the Combat Butler will uphold your moral code so that you may enjoy it with dignity.

LIZZIE MCGUIRE:

Every day I came back from Vennu Mallesh Kid Lovers' Association, turned my TV on and changed the channel to Animax hoping for another X-Men - Wolverine and Friends episode. Instead I was greeted by this sad excuse for an anime. You know what? I don't even think this was an anime, even if it did air on Animax. All of Lizzie McGuire episodes had this unrealistic 12 year-old girl with her unrealistic 12 year-old girl problems. Watch Guren Lagann instead, it has Just because a movie has Morgan Freeman in it doesn't make the LEGO Movie an anime. Other Morgan Freeman movies were animes, sure. But, the LEGO Movie is nowhere near an anime.

MY LITTLE PONY:

I don't know why people like this. It's not an anime and it's not a manga. It's something that little children watch, not grown adults. I'm really sad to say that grown people actually watch this. I-I'm sorry, but... I can't... I can't write about this any more.
