

PAUL RUDD

wants to be Lego man

Actor Paul Rudd says he wants to be turned into a Lego figure as it is "the best thing." The 46-year-old actor, who is playing the titular superhero in upcoming Marvel movie "Ant-Man", said he is very excited at the prospect of his alter ego Scott Lang becoming a mini-toy, reported Female First. "I want a Lego. I think the coolest thing of all is that I'm wondering if there's going to be one of me in Lego. That's the best thing. That's the only thing I want," Paul said. "The 40-Year-Old Virgin" star, who will don a superhero suit that can shrink him down to the size of the insect while increasing his strength, said he found it a really cool experience to wear the suit because it reminded him of a Stormtrooper from the "Star Wars".

Shahid Mira Prepares To Tie The Knot

Shahid Kapoor is all set to break many a heart as he gets married in the first week of July to Delhi-based Mira Rajput. While the actual wedding date is still under wraps, rumour has it that on July 12, the 'Haider' star will host a grand reception for his friends from the industry. The wedding ceremony, on the contrary, will be a low-key affair with only family members in attendance and few close friends from the industry that include 'Haider' director Vishal Bharadwaj.

According to a report published in Times of India, Shahid Kapoor is inviting every colleague of his to the reception party. There is some confusion as to whether all his colleagues include his ex-girlfriends from the industry Kareena, Vidya, Priyanka and Sonakshi. "Shahid wishes to introduce Mira to everyone. He will invite all his co-stars and well-wishers. As he begins a new chapter in his life, he wants to seek the good wishes of people who have been a part of his journey," the report says.

ED SHEERAN

to star in his concert movie

Singer Ed Sheeran is set to star in a movie, documenting his Wembley Stadium shows, which will take place in July. The 24-year-old singer revealed he is going to follow the footsteps of One Direction, Katy Perry and Justin Bieber in creating a documentary, based around his three sell-out Wembley Stadium shows in London, reported Contactmusic. "We are doing something for the Wembley Stadium gigs. It will be a documentary. It's going to go out in cinemas in the UK and Europe. But it's just going to be a one-off thing," Sheeran said. The "Thinking Out Loud" hitmaker will be shadowed by cameras backstage as he steps out in front of 90,000 fans for the trio of gigs, which kick off on July 10. Although he is allowing a camera crew to film these concerts, Sheeran has no interest in being followed by cameras 24/7 for a reality TV show, yet. "If I had kids and someone came to me and said 'Here's a reality show, here's a bunch of money', of course I'd do it, but I'm not at that stage yet," he said.
