Hollywood star couple Ashton Kutcher and Mila Kunis have reportedly tied the knot. The couple are said to have tied the knot last week, but neither the pair nor their representatives have confirmed the news, reports people.com. Kutcher and Kunis sparked wedding rumours in January after Kutcher, 37, posted a cryptic image on Facebook with the words: "Happy New Year Love The Kutchers" written on the sand. Later in March, Kunis, 31, was asked about her relationship status with Kutcher in an interview with James Corden of "The Late Late Show". "Are you married? Did you get married? Have you gotten married," the late-night show host asked. "I don't know. Maybe. Maybe," Kunis replied, leaving fans wondering if she and Kutcher was actually a married couple. The duo first met on the set of FOX's sitcom "That '70s Show" which ran from 1998 to 2006. However, their romance started blossoming only in 2012. In February 2014, they got engaged and later in October, they welcomed their daughter Wyatt Isabelle.

BLACK PANTHER

Ava DuVernay passes Marvel's

"Selma" director Ava DuVernay, who was in talks with Marvel to helm the first black superhero movie "Black Panther", is not directing the movie. There were reports that DuVernay will direct the superhero drama but the filmmaker said she passed the project as she and Marvel had different ideas on developing the project. "I guess I'll declare my independence from this rumor on 4th of July weekend and Essence weekend! I'm not signing on to direct Black Panther," DuVernay told Essence. "I think I'll just say we had different ideas about what the story would be. Marvel has a certain way of doing things and I think they're fantastic and a lot of people love what they do. I loved that they reached out to me." The movie is currently in the works and Chadwick Boseman is set to play the role of T'Challa, the ruler of the fictional nation of Wakanda and the first Black superhero to appear in a mainstream comic book franchise in the 60s. DuVernay is currently busy shooting a love story that is set against Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans.
