OUR CORRESPONDENT, Bogra

Atiqul Alam, a prominent journalist, died from cardiac arrest in Bogra yesterday, aged 82.

Atiqul, who served BBC, Reuters and the daily Aarthoniti Protidin, left behind his wife Rowshan Ara and a son.

Hailed from Pabna town, he lived in the capital's Moghbazar.

Following a chest pain in his in-law's house, Atiqul was rushed to Shaheed Ziaur Rahman Medical College and Hospital in Bogra where the on-duty doctor declared him dead.

His body was taken to Dhaka for burial after the first namaz-e-janaja at a mosque in Bogra.

RANGPUR DIVISION

Waterborne, malnutrition related diseases waning

BSS, Rangpur

Recurrence of waterborne and malnutrition related diseases and related deaths have been reduced to the minimum in rural areas in Rangpur division following continuous improvement of all health indexes.

During the past six and a half years, the rural people have achieved laudable success in health, hygiene, sanitation, nutrition, safe drinking water, nutrition and safe delivery following massive government steps and awareness building activities.

The government health officials and workers, union health sub-centres and community clinics have been playing vital roles along with different other departments and organizations concerned, NGOs, WHO and Unicef to achieve the substantial success.

According to principal of Rangpur Medical College and noted medicine specialist Prof Zakir Hossain, recurrence of diarrhoea, cholera, dysentery and worms has been reduced to the minimum.

Community Medicine Specialist of Rangpur Medical College Hospital Dr Fazlul Haque said rate of neonatal, child and maternal mortalities has also been reduced to the minimum as a result of huge awareness among the rural people.

Gynecologist of RMCH Dr Kamrun Nahar Jui and child specialist Shariful Islam said the community clinics were playing due roles in achieving the success through providing health, hygiene and nutrition-related services and information to rural people.

Dr Shahadat Hossain, former Rangpur divisional director (health), said recurrence of waterborne diseases among the people has been reduced to the minimum improving all public health indexes in recent years.

The rural health, hygiene and nutrition situations have marked laudable improvement following re-launching and strengthening of the community clinics and health sub-centres by the government to ensure medicare services for the rural people.

Besides, safe deliveries are being performed at many community clinics reducing rate of maternal and child deaths pushing the country towards achieving the set millennium development goals (MDGs), he further said.

Accident". According to WHO, "Road crashes are the second leading cause of death globally among young people aged five to 29 and the third leading cause of death among people aged 30 to 44 years. Road crashes kill 1.2 million people every year and injure or disable as many as 50 million more. Without immediate action to improve road safety, it is estimated that road traffic deaths will increase by 80% in low- and middle-income countries by 2020. A joint report launched by the World Health Organization (WHO) and the World Bank today demonstrates that much can be done to reduce the toll of deaths and injuries and that 'Road Safety is no Accident'."

WHO meant we have to have a concrete plan of road safety and that it cannot happen accidentally. A clever way of saying the right thing indeed.

Making her party's stance against violence, she said, "Our movement will be for the welfare of the country and its people. We don't believe in the movement of arson attacks and vandalism. People know it very well who had resorted to violence and arson attacks."

Khaleda alleged that a vested quarter has long been hatching conspiracy against BNP to divide it.

"BNP is still the most popular party of Bangladesh. They're (government) making their continuous efforts to annihilate BNP because of its vast popularity," she claimed. She alleged that the government through various agencies is making reports in different media against BNP to split it.

"I'm to clearly state that there is no division and grouping in BNP. The party has been with people and will remain so in the future too. People got fad up with the misrule of Awami League," she said adding that the people are going through a critical time due to unbri-dled price hike of essentials.

She accused the government of failure to control the law and order in the country. "Killing, enforced disappearances have now been the daily items in newspapers as there is no rule of law, and law and order. Now the country's people have no security. Those who are responsible for giving the security are now making the people their hostage. They (law enforcers) are picking up people and collecting a huge amount of money."

The BNP chief accused that the government has politicised the administration, police administration and the judiciary, obliterating the rule of law and justice.

She reiterated her demand for a fresh national election under a non-party administration.

Khaleda exchanged pleasantries with the heads of diplomatic missions eminent citizens.
