AFP, Birmingham

England paceman James Anderson has been ruled out of the remainder of the third Ashes Test against Australia at Edgbaston and next week's fourth Test at Trent Bridge, the England and Wales Cricket Board announced Friday.

Anderson left the field three balls into his ninth over in Australia's second innings at Edgbaston on Thursday -- his 33rd birthday.

An ECB statement confirmed he had suffered a side strain.

"Anderson will be unavailable for the fourth Test beginning on Thursday 6 August at Trent Bridge and his availability for the final Test in the series (at The Oval on August 20) will be determined in due course," the statement said.

England take 2-1 lead

Beat Aus by 8 wkts in the 3rd Ashes Test at Edgbaston

AFP, Birmingham

Ian Bell delighted a capacity crowd at his Warwickshire home ground with a sparkling unbeaten fifty as England beat Australia by eight wickets to win the third Test at Edgbaston on Friday.

Victory, achieved with more than two days to spare, saw England go 2-1 up in the five-match Ashes series. England, set a modest victory target of 121, finished on 124 for two after lunch on Friday's third day. Bell was 65 not out and Joe Root, who struck the winning boundary off Mitchell Marsh, 38 not out.

There was a moment of concern for England when captain Alastair Cook (seven) was bowled by a superb swinging delivery from left-arm paceman Mitchell Starc to leave the hosts seven for one.

But Bell, roared on by England fans in a sun-drenched crowd, then took charge with a flurry of four fours in seven balls off Starc, including one down the ground and a classic cover-drive.

Bell was, however, given a reprieve on 20 when, with England 35 for one, he edged Starc to second slip only for Australia captain Michael Clarke to drop the two-handed catch.

England opener Adam Lyth has also been struggling with the bat and when he was lbw to Josh Hazlewood's inswinger for 12, it meant the hosts were now 51 for two.

Root, Lyth's Yorkshire team-mate, showed few signs of nerves, however, in cutting his first ball, from Hazlewood, for four.

Bell's late-cut boundary off Starc saw him to his second fifty of the match, off 68 balls with seven fours.

It was a fine performance by the 33-year-old Bell, who came into this match -- his 113th Test -- with a question mark against his place after several meagre innings.

Australia resumed Friday on 168 for seven, 23 runs ahead and the two not out batsmen overnight, Peter Nevill and Starc, both went on to make fifties and shared an eighth-wicket stand of 64 that boosted Australia's second innings total to 265 all out.

England fast bowler Steven Finn, recalled for his first Test in two years following an injury to Mark Wood, led the attack with his best figures at this level of six for 79.

SCORES IN BRIEF

AUSTRALIA: First innings 136

ENGLAND: First innings 281

AUSTRALIA: Second innings 265 (Warner 77, Nevill 59, Starc 58; Finn 6-79)

ENGLAND: Second innings 124 for 2 (Lyth 12, Bell 65 not out, Root 38 not out; Starc 1-33, Hazlewood 1-21)

Result: England won by eight wickets and lead five-match series 2-1.

FIFA PRESIDENCY CAMPAIGN

Zico gets Brazil backing

AFP, Rio de Janeiro

The Brazilian Football Federation (CBF) said Thursday it is backing national football legend Zico's bid to replace Sepp Blatter as FIFA president.

The endorsement was a big boost for Zico, 62, who has previously conceded lacking support from Brazil's footballing top brass. However, to establish himself as a formal candidate he would still have to get backing from four other countries.

"Zico has our support to pursue his candidacy. If he gets the other four signatures, the CBF will back his application," the body's president, Marco Polo Del Nero, said in a statement.

Zico -- who has managed several teams including Japan and Iraq as well as latterly Indian club side Goa -- has no experience in international football administration.

He said he was "happy with the response," which he called a "kickstart" to his bid to win the FIFA top spot.

Blatter announced his intention to stand down on June 2, shortly after winning election to a fifth term, amid a corruption scandal sweeping through the FIFA executive committee. Brazil had been one of the countries voting to extend his mandate.

Walcott, 26, announced on Twitter that he had signed a four-year contract, but the length of Cazorla's deal was not disclosed.

"We're delighted to have extended the contracts of Santi and Theo," Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger told the club's website. "Both are top quality players who are hugely important and influential to our squad."

Walcott tweeted a picture of himself wearing Arsenal's home kit and standing beside the Emirates Stadium pitch, accompanied by the caption: "This is my home! Happy to have signed a new 4 year deal."

Beijing to host 2022 Winter Olympics

AFP, Kuala Lumpur

Beijing on Friday narrowly won an IOC vote for the 2022 Winter Olympic Games that secured its place in sporting history.

The Chinese capital beat Almaty of Kazakhstan by just 44 votes to 40, with one abstention, to become the first city to be awarded the summer and winter Games.

Beijing held the summer Olympics in 2008 in what was then seen as China sealing its place as an emerging superpower.

The 2022 Games will be held in March 2022 during the Lunar New Year and with many outdoor events held against a backdrop of the Great Wall of China.

Asia will also host the 2018 Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, South Korea.

Sheikh Jamal's recipe for success

SPORTS REPORTER

Good management, proper training facilities, team spirit, timely incentives and quality players are undoubtedly the off-field ingredients behind Sheikh Jamal Dhanmondi Club's back-to-back success in the professional football league, but the real architects in their on-field success are the three foreigners -- Haiti's Wedson Anselme, Nigeria's Emeka Darlington and Gambia's Landing Darboe.

The three musketeers have racked up a total of 46 goals -- Wedson (17), Emeka (17) and Landing (12) -- out of 56 Sheikh Jamal scored in 18 matches so far. Wedson (26), Emeka (20) and Sony Norde (13) had also played the key role behind the club's premier league success last season league as they scored 59 out of 78 goals in 27 matches.

However, the three of them did not perform too well in the first phase of the league and bagged only 14 goals. But things turned dramatically in the second phase, corresponding to Joseph Afusi appointment in place of veteran coach Maruful Haque.

The Nigerian was, however, not ready to draw the line between the foreign players and the local players, rather he was happy to give credit to all of the team members.

"Football is not a game of one or two players. It is a game of 11 players; so if the local players did not perform well and assist the players upfront, the foreign players could not have scored," said Afusi, after the win against Mohammedan on Thursday night confirmed the title.

Skipper Mamunul Islam, though, gave the three foreigners 50 per cent credit behind Sheikh Jamal's success.

"To reinstall the confidence of the three foreigners, the club president brought a change in the coach's position and that paid dividends. They were inspired in the second leg and proved their worth by some sparkling performances," said Mamunul at the club tent yesterday.

Mamunul believes Abahani were the main challengers for the title and displayed eye-catching football under George Kottan, but failed due to lack of a proven goalscorer like Wedson or Emeka.

Having enjoyed the party at the club tent early Thursday night, Wedson soon left for United States in midnight, promising to return next season while the others partied till late night.

Emeka didn't want to take the credit himself, rather praised all of his teammates including the reserve bench and termed the professionalism as the key behind Sheikh Jamal's success.

"Sheikh Jamal is a professional club and much organised than the other clubs playing in the Bangladesh Premier League," said Emeka. "I have played in Nigeria, Tunisia, South Africa and Saudi Arab where I never won back-to-back league titles. So it is a big achievement in my career," said the Nigerian.

Mamunul informed that the club president, Manjur Kader, had declared Tk 20 lakh bonus for the players and the coaching staff and announced to keep the champion team intact for the next season.
