

'SHERLOCK' VICTORIAN-SET SPECIAL REMAINS SHROUDED IN MYSTERY AFTER Q&A

In a recent Q&A, Sherlock EP Steven Moffat and PBS's Masterpiece chief Rebecca Eaton worked like gangbusters making sure to convey no actual information about the Sherlock one-off special, which will be set in the Victorian era. Though it's been widely reported the program will be a Christmas special in the UK, and a trailer of what has been described as such was screened at Comic-Con (watch it on YouTube), Eaton and Moffat steadfastly declined to confirm. Journalists in the hall were left deducing, like the famous sleuth, that it must be airing in the U.S. some time before January. Moffat did offer that the Victorian era better lends itself to ghost stories – then clammed up again. Speaking thereof, Cumberbatch is starring in Hamlet for a 12-week run at the Barbican theater, a run that reportedly sold out in minutes last August, and did not attend today's Q&A, but sent a video answering what he anticipated would be the questions he would have been asked.

Shah Rukh Khan inspired by

BAAHUBALI

Bollywood badshah Shah Rukh Khan, who is an avid social media user, makes the most of it by praising good work of other filmmakers as well. The superstar recently took to Twitter and praised on the very majestic 'Baahubali'. The film by SS Rajamouli has left many smitten by the sheer hard work and grandeur of it. SRK too could not resist the temptation of praising the film in public. SRK tweeted: "Baahubali what a hard worked at film. To everyone involved thanks for the inspiration. You can only reach the sky if you are willing to take the leap!" After Salman, it is now Shah Rukh, who feels such good work surely inspires others to make great cinema for viewers.

NICHOLAS HOULT

Jack Reynor eyed for 'Robin Hood: Origins'?

Nicholas Hoult, Jack Reynor and Jack Houston are reportedly among the actors contesting for "Robin Hood: Origins", to be produced by Hollywood star Leonardo DiCaprio. Taron Egerton and Dylan O'Brien are also being considered to lead Lionsgate's upcoming take on the classic tale. "Peaky Blinders" director Otto Hathurst will sit behind the lens and Joby Harold, who wrote Guy Ritchie's "Knights of the Roundtable: King Arthur", is tapped to pen the script. Reynor reportedly had "a successful session" with the director while scheduling conflicts may prevent some other candidates, like Egerton who is expected to return for "Kingsman" sequel, to take the role.

