

23 JUMP STREET

Phil Lord & Chris Miller Only Producing

Despite 22 Jump Street ending with a hilarious post-credits sequence that seemingly rendered any potential follow-ups obsolete, Sony is moving forward with 23 Jump Street. Whether this project simply continues the misadventures of Schmidt (Jonah Hill) and Jenko (Channing Tatum), or sees our favourite undercover cops team up with the Men in Black remains to be seen. A big reason why the first two instalments were so successful was the comic sensibilities of directors Phil Lord and Chris Miller. Since they've demonstrated a knack for handling this kind of material two times over, fans are hoping they'll be back behind the camera for the third entry. However, the duo will only be on board as producers and nothing more as the two have been among the most in-demand talents in Hollywood after 22 Jump Street and Lego Movie. They're already committed to writing Warner Bros.' The Flash movie, penning an animated Spider-Man movie for Sony, and directing Lucasfilm's young Han Solo Star Wars Anthology film. They simply don't have the time for a more hands-on role in 23 Jump Street.

BAAHUBALI

Set to Shatter 'Dhoom 3' Record to Become 3rd All Time Highest Grosser

SS Rajamouli's "Baahubali" continues its dream run at the worldwide box office on the verge of beating the record of Hindi film "Dhoom 3". Despite facing competition from "Srimanthudu", the film has managed to make decent business globally. Early predictions state that the multilingual movie has made a total business of Rs. 533 crore. The movie is set to beat Aamir Khan's Bollywood blockbuster "Dhoom 3", which has made a lifetime business of Rs. 542 crore. "Baahubali" is expected to beat the record by the end of this weekend and it will be a rare achievement for a South Indian movie to reach such ranks previously ruled by Hindi films. It will make SS Rajamouli's flick the third highest grossing movie of all time in India after "Bajrangi Bhajiaan" which has earned Rs. 547 crore so far, and Aamir Khan's "PK", which collected Rs. 740 crore worldwide. The sequel for the film is already in production and is rumoured to be released in mid 2016.
