'Robber' killed in 'gunfight' with cops

STAR REPORT

A suspected robber was killed in a "gunfight" between detectives and his cohorts in Comilla early yesterday. The dead is Abdul Quader, 35, of Bharanikanda village under Monoharganj upazila of the district.

Inspector Sadeque of Monoharganj Police Station said the "gunfight" victim was accused in several cases filed with the police station.

The Detective Branch (DB) of police in Comilla said they nabbed eight of Quader's aides and recovered firearms from their possession while the criminals were trying to flee.

With Quader, at least 24 people were killed in such "gunfights" or "shootouts" between July 1 and August 22, according to reports published in this newspaper.

Rights body Ain o Salish Kendra said 72 people lost their lives in "crossfire" between law enforcers and alleged criminals in the first six months of this year.

Sub-inspector Shah Kamal Akand of Comilla DB claimed that a team of detectives were returning to Comilla city following a

RAJUK REELING FROM CRIMES

No crime impossible

Internal probe points at culture of impunity

TAWFIQUE ALI

For many Rajuk officials, committing almost any type of corruption is possible -- be it forging signatures and documents, removing or damaging files and altering the identities of genuine leaseholders of plots.

Officials get involved in corruption since they go scot-free. This has put the city development regulator in a grave crisis, according to an internal probe.

"Those who commit offences like removing original documents from files, forging signatures and altering photographs of original leaseholders of plots are not brought to book in any way," said the probe report.

It

found that Rajuk Authorised Officer Md Mizanur Rahman forged signatures of two top officials and illegally got approved the plan of a 19-storey building on Kemal Ataturk Avenue (plot-35, 37) in the city.

The probe body also held another Authorised Officer Sukomol Chakma responsible for abetting the crime.

Google could 'rig' 2016 US polls'

Researcher points out secret algorithm of the search giant as possible threat

CNN ONLINE

By manipulating its search results, Google could decide the next US presidential election.

The world's most-used search engine is so powerful and national elections are so tight, that even a tiny tweak in Google's (GOOGL, Tech30) secret algorithm could swing the 2016 election, according to Robert Epstein, senior research psychologist at the American Institute for Behavioral Research and Technology.

In an op-ed on Politico.com, Epstein said he and a team of researchers studied behaviour in undecided voters who had been exposed to rigged search results. By displaying results that show a more favourable

Sweet-sour & money-spinner

QUARMUL ISLAM RUBAIYAT, Thakurgaon

Cultivation of the mouth-watering lotkon is proving to be a money-spinner in Panchagarh district as farmers have successfully managed to increase its production over the last few years.

As demand for the yellow, oval-shaped fruit with an appealing savoury flavour rises, the crop is gaining popularity among local farmers both as an intercrop in areca nut plantations and also in household gardens where it grows naturally with a little extra care.

Section 57 to be scrutinised
Says law minister

UNB, Dhaka

Law Minister Anisul Haq yesterday said section 57 of the Information and Communication Technology (ICT) Act would be scrutinised to see if the questions arising over it are logical.

He said, "We'll think about reconsidering it, if necessary."

He also said a new law would be enacted to prevent cyber crimes in the country.

"There'll be a new law soon to deal with cyber crimes," the minister said while talking to reporters after inaugurating a boat race programme in the

ISIS 'deputy' killed in air strike: US

AFP, Washington

The second-in-command of the Islamic State jihadist group has been killed in a US air strike in northern Iraq, the White House said Friday.

The National Security Council identified the slain militant as Fadhl Ahmad al-Hayali, also known as Haji Mutaz, and said he was ISIS leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi's senior deputy.

This is not the first time that US officials have announced Hayali's death.

In December, US defense officials, speaking to reporters on condition of anonymity, said he was one of several senior figures killed in coalition strikes, giving another of his pseudonyms, Abu Muslim al-Turkmani.

But US forces now say they were able to kill him, along with an ISIS "media operative" known as Abu Abdullah, on August 18 in a strike on a vehicle near the city of Mosul.

The White House described Hayali as a member of the Islamic State's ruling council, and "a primary coordinator for moving large amounts of weapons, explosives, vehicles and people between Iraq and Syria".

Dolphin spied for Israel!

SKYNEWS.COM.AU

Hamas has captured a dolphin that it believes was working for Israeli spy agency Mossad, it has been claimed.

According to reports, the dolphin was captured several weeks ago and was said to have been equipped with "spying equipment" including cameras.

A Hamas source's claims were publicised by Israel's Army Radio which made it clear that while Israel
