FEEL GOOD FRAPPES

The sweltering heat of summer is taking its toll on all of us. The roads glisten in the heat and the humidity lies like an oppressive shroud on all of us, making matters worse. As hot dust billows up behind the passing cars and buses, we fall into the hands of overwhelming thirst.

The sweltering heat of summer is taking its toll on all of us. The roads glisten in the heat and the humidity lies like an oppressive shroud on all of us, making matters worse. As hot dust billows up behind the passing cars and buses, we fall into the hands of overwhelming thirst.

In times like these, the perfect thirst quencher is the frappe.

The frappe was invented in 1957 in Greece. Nestle was exhibiting a new chocolate beverage for children that was produced instantly in a shaker at the International Trade Fair. During the course of the Fair, Nestle employee Dimitris Vakondios, needing a pick-me-up, decided to make some instant coffee.

Hot water was nowhere to be found, so Dimitris mixed the coffee mix with cold water and ice, and borrowed the shaker. An instant hit was born!

Today, the Café Frappe is the national drink of Greece, but Dhaka is not far behind.

For the past couple of years the frappe has been raging through Dhaka city winning the hearts of its dwellers. Deliciously light and frothy, blended with ice and topped off with fluffy whipped cream. In this scorching summer heat, frappe is the perfect alternative to the hot traditional coffee as a boost of energy for the day.

It is the perfect supplement to both sweet and savoury meals. Quite filling in itself, the frappe is a perfect thing to order when you're not too hungry. Frappes are widely available and can be found on the menus of most cafés nowadays. Some of the popular stores offering these deli-icious drinks are: Coffee World, Gloria Jean's Coffees, Bittersweet Café, George's Café, and the newcomer Columbus Coffee.

On an average the price of frappes ranges between Tk150-300 depending on the size. This makes them perfect for casual hangouts with friends, dates with your loved one or family dinners.

Unsure about which frappe to try out? Allow me to introduce to you some of the crowd favourites.

OREO LOVE

The Oreo Shake definitely holds the first place in everyone's hearts. It's the safe drink to choose because it is almost always absolutely delicious. It usually does not contain coffee, so is perfect for non coffee-lovers. I am partial to the Oreo Love drink at Cilantro. It is mouth-wateringly rich and chocolaty and you can feel the crunchy chunks of the Oreo cookies as you sip. The only problem with this drink is that it will keep you wanting more.
