

Journalists acquitted in Thai navy defamation trial

AFP, Phuket

An Australian journalist and his Thai colleague were acquitted of criminal defamation yesterday over a report implicating Thailand's navy in human trafficking, as the country faces heavy criticism for its role in the deadly trade.

The pair were also found not guilty on another charge of breaching the nation's tough Computer Crimes Act in a high-profile trial that had sparked condemnation from human rights groups and the United Nations.

Alan Morison and Chutima Sidasathian, of the Phuketwan news website, had faced up to seven years in jail over a July 2013 article quoting a Reuters news agency investigation that said some Thai navy members were involved in trafficking Rohingya Muslims fleeing Myanmar.

"The court has acquitted (the pair)," their lawyer Siriwan Vongkietpaisan told AFP shortly after the verdict was delivered at Phuket Provincial Court.

The ruling is a rare bright spot for the media in a nation governed by a junta that has stamped down on freedom of expression.

Amnesty International welcomed the verdict but added that the two journalists "should never have had to stand trial in the first place".

"This is just the latest in a long line of attacks on freedom of expression and media outlets since the military seized power in 2014," regional spokesman Josef Benedict said.

The acquittal comes after the region's people-trafficking trade was dramatically laid bare this year when dozens of migrants' graves were found on the Thai-Malaysia border.

As the network unraveled amid a Thai crackdown, migrants were abandoned at sea and in jungle camps, in a crisis that eventually forced Southeast Asian governments to respond.

Speaking to AFP after the verdict, Chutima said: "The judge did the right thing, this is a big step for freedom of expression and freedom of the media in Thailand."

Southern Thailand has long been known as a nexus for lucrative and largely unchecked smuggling networks through which persecuted Rohingya Muslims in Buddhist-majority Myanmar, and Bangladeshi economic migrants, pass on their way to Malaysia.

Murder

The Rab got clues about the three by tracking the phone of one of them.

The arrestees said they abducted Tanvir and then slit his throat on August 25, said Lt Col Mahbubul, adding that they demanded ransom after the murder from Tanvir's family over the phone.

"I demand exemplary punishment to the criminals," said the victim's father.

Latif quits parliament

Addressing the House, Latif, with a smiling face, said, "Honourable Speaker, I am tendering my resignation from my Tangail-4 constituency. If you want, I can read it out."

"You don't need to do it," replied Speaker Shirin Sharmin Chaudhury.

"Today is my last day in parliament. I don't want to make any complaints against anyone," he said.

"I am a human being and to err is human. I don't lose my trust in humanity. Even though the state acted repressively on me, I faced it with patience," Latif continued.

"I haven't come here with a basket of complaints. I am always against of all sorts of fraudulence, self-interest and vagueness," he said, adding that he was not afraid of criticism and that he had dedicated his life to uphold people's interest.

Refuting the allegations of hurting religious sentiment, Latif said he was a "pure Muslim" and believed in secularism and religion.

He also claimed that he was an Awami Leaguer and a follower of Bangabandhu.

During his 15-minute speech, Latif said, "My leader doesn't want me to continue as a Member of Parliament and I am offering my resignation from Tangail-4 constituency. I was loyal to her when I was her activist. Why will I not be so after my expulsion?"

The EC has been holding a hearing on the issue of the cancellation of Latif's parliamentary membership. His resignation came when the EC was yet to give its decision.

Eight months after his expulsion from the party, the AL on July 5 this year sent a letter to the Speaker informing her of Latif's expulsion. Later, the Speaker sent a letter to the EC seeking its opinion on Latif's parliamentary membership.

In his speech, Latif raised questions whether the Speaker had the authority to send letters to the EC seeking its opinion on the fate of his membership.

On October 12, he was sacked from his position as the telecommunications and information technology minister and was also removed from party presidium, the highest policy-making body of the party. He lost his primary membership in the AL on October 24 last year.

The wholesalers then sell them to their agents for Tk 20,000 to Tk 25,000. The agents hand them over to retailers for Tk 40,000 to Tk 45,000. Retailers, in turn, circulate the notes while buying goods and transferring money.

A case was filed with Mirpur Police Station in this connection.

'Too costly'

Shameem Ahmed Chowdhury Noman, a Bangladeshi private agent who recruits female domestic workers in Saudi Arabia, admitted that the supply of such workers had indeed declined, and their recruitment cost which is borne by the employers gone up.

"There is a gap between the supply and the demand. Saudi Arabia needs more female domestic workers, but the supply [from Bangladesh] is poor," he told The Daily Star.

He claimed that the countries like Sri Lanka, Philippines and Indonesia were now reluctant to send female domestic workers abroad, meaning it would be "hard" for the Saudi recruiters to stop hiring Bangladeshi workers.

Lifting a seven-year ban, Dhaka and Riyadh on February 10 signed a deal to resume recruitment of workers from Bangladesh on a gradual basis, beginning with domestic helps.

Until July, more than 2,200 domestic workers were recruited in the KSA whereas the average yearly recruitment was only about 200 between 2009 and 2014, according to the Bureau of Manpower, Employment and Training data.

According to yesterday's Arab News report, an official at the Saudi embassy in Nepal said the two countries would ink a labour agreement "soon" for recruiting domestic workers in the KSA.

Big bug

River. Scientists at Yale University determined they were a new species from about 460 million years ago, when Iowa was under an ocean.

"This is the first real big predator," lead author of the study, James Lamsdell said. "I wouldn't have wanted to be swimming with it. There's something about bugs. When they're a certain size, they shouldn't be allowed to get bigger."

This creature is named Pentecopterus decorahensis after an ancient Greek warship and is not a bug by science definitions, Dr Lamsdell said. It's part of the eurypterid family.

Those type of creatures "are really cool," said Joe Hannibal, curator of invertebrate paleontology at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. Hannibal wasn't part of the study, but praised it for being well done, adding "this species is not particularly bizarre for a eurypterid."

Unlike modern land scorpions, this creature's tail didn't sting. It was used more for balance and in swimming, but half this creature's length was tail, Lamsdell said.

There were larger sea scorpions halfway around the world at the same time but those were more bottom feeders instead of dominant predators, he said.

"It was obviously a very aggressive animal," he said. "It was a big angry bug."

Zafrullah Chy discharged

On June 10, the same tribunal found Zafrullah guilty of contempt of court for expressing concern over the punishment of Dhaka-based British journalist David Bergman, and gave him one-hour's jail sentence in the dock and fined him Tk 5,000.

After serving the jail term inside the courtroom, he made some comments before the media. Five people, including three freedom fighters, filed a petition on July 6 seeking contempt of court proceeding against Zafrullah for his comments.

"Today's contempt of court verdict is the proof of mental illness of the three judges. It proves mental illness of three justices. Ensuring justice is not possible if the judges can't tolerate criticism. When they can't tolerate criticism and lack rationality, they hide themselves under cover of law," a part of his comments reads.

The tribunal on July 12 initiated contempt proceeding against Zafrullah and asked him to explain as to why he should not be punished for his "derogatory" comments.

On August 10, Zafrullah, through his lawyer, sought unconditional apology and prayed to be exonerated from the proceeding.

Yesterday, the tribunal said: "We admit that we are allowed to suffer scrutiny and respectful comment on our ability and authority. But on no count, the above comment was 'fair', 'reasonable' and 'legitimate'. Rather, the conduct and the utterance the contemnor Dr Zafrullah made before the media constitutes grossest scandalizing the tribunal..."

"We are of the view that only an ignorant and wrongheaded person opts to show such revolting and arrogant behaviour demeaning the dignity and lawful authority of a court of law," the order reads.

The tribunal expressed regret to note that Zafrullah, a valiant freedom fighter, was facing this contempt proceeding.

"But it does not mean that this credential has given him unfettered license to do and say whatever he likes aiming to the court of law and its judges remaining present inside the courtroom," it added.

Zafrullah, by his scurrilous and grave scandalising comments disparaging the lawful authority and ability of the tribunal and its judges, has committed the offence of "grossest contempt", the tribunal said.

As he sought unconditional apology, the tribunal pardoned him saying, "Now pardoning the contemnor, as prayed, does not mean endorsing his deliberate wrong and contemptible conduct."

"It simply aims to provide space of self-correction so that in future the contemnor can remain restrained from maligning the judiciary and the judges..." it added.

Endorsing the finding of Justice Obaidul Hassan and another member Justice Md Shahinur Islam, Justice Md Mozibur Rahman Miah, also gave independent views over the case.

"I once again warn his [Zafrullah's] act of criticism towards the judges seriously and rigorously and caution that, in future if he is found to repeat these sorts of hideous remark towards the judges, he shall have to face calamitous consequence," Justice Mozibur Rahman wrote in the judgement.

Doctor for the poor

sacrifice, the lifelong bachelor had been treating poor patients in Madhupur reserved forest area in Tangail for the last three decades almost for free.

The New Zealander set up a small healthcare centre at Kailakuri village of the union first in 1983 and had been giving treatment and medicine to the locals.

For checkups, he used to charge Tk 5 from patients living within three kilometres of the centre and Tk 10 from those living beyond. After checkups, patients would get the required medicine from the centre whether they could pay or not.

The money to run the centre used to come from private donors and friends and family members in the US, the UK and his home country.

In an interview with The Daily Star in September 2011, he said he chose Bangladesh to realise his dream because the people here were "really good" and they did not get healthcare due to poverty. "I've chosen this country in order to give them a little health support."

Born into a noble family in 1941, Baker obtained his MBBS degree from Otego Medical College at Dunedin in New Zealand in 1965.

He then joined a government medical team and served in war-ravaged Vietnam till 1975. He then went to Australia and England and took several courses on child health.

Baker came to Bangladesh in 1979 and joined a Christian mission hospital in Meherpur. Two years later, he moved to Kumudini Hospital in Mirzapur where he worked for eight months.

He then joined a clinic run by the Church of Bangladesh at Thanarbaid of Madhupur upazila in 1983 but soon realised that he needed to learn Bangla if he really wanted to understand his patients, many of them indigenous people. In a year, he learned to communicate in Bangla and over the years became fluent.

Finally in 1996, he set up the Kailakuri Health Care Centre where he died yesterday. It is also where he will be laid to eternal rest today according to his last wish.

When this newspaper interviewed him in 2011, he was already ill. Between May and September that year, he had undergone two surgeries.

Back then, he said he was waiting for a successor. "Many students get MBBS degrees in the country every year. I'm waiting for one of them to come and take the responsibility to provide treatment to the poor in the area."

No one has come yet.

4 students suspended

Haque Bhuyan told The Daily Star.

A show cause notice was also issued to the four students, the VC said. He, however, did not say when they would have to come up with their explanations.

According to campus sources, the four are followers of BCL's SUST unit General Secretary Imran Khan. But Imran rejected the claim.

On Monday night, the BCL suspended three of its SUST leaders -- Abu Saeed Akond, senior vice-president, Anjan Ray, vice-president, and Sajedul Islam Sabuj, joint general secretary -- in connection with assaulting teachers.

The pro-Awami League student organisation also served a show cause notice on the three, asking them to explain why they would not be expelled, said SM Jakir Hossain, general secretary of BCL central committee.

He said they would soon begin an internal investigation into the trio's involvement in the incident.

On Sunday, alleged BCL activists swooped on teachers during the latter's pre-scheduled demonstration to stop the VC from entering his office. Several teachers, including Prof Yasmeen Haque, wife of noted writer Prof Muhammed Zafar Iqbal, were assaulted at that time.

On that afternoon, BCL's SUST unit President Sanjibon Chakravarty Partha claimed that Chhatra League was not involved in the incident "organisationally".

Meanwhile, the agitating teachers yesterday staged a demonstration on the campus as part of their three-day programme protesting the assault.

They brought out a silent procession from the teachers' canteen and ended it in front of the administrative building after parading through the campus streets. They also held a rally there.

The teachers under the banner of Mahan Muktiuddher Chetona Udbuddho Shikkhak Parishad launched the agitation on April 12, demanding the removal of the VC for his alleged misbehaviour with some teachers and irregularities.

On the other hand, another group of teachers under the banner of Muktiuddher Chetona O Mukto Chinta Charchai Oikyabaddha Shikkhakbrinda took the VC's side and labelled the agitation as "an act of creating instability".

On April 20, 35 agitating teachers resigned from different administrative posts in protest. Four days later, the VC went on a two-month leave.

On August 24, the education ministry asked all teachers to stop the movement to keep the academic activities on.

Meanwhile, Samajik Pratirodh Committee, a platform of 70 women and human rights organisations, yesterday condemned the assault on the teachers and demanded an action against those responsible for the incident.

Suicide bomber kills six in NW Pakistan: officials

AFP, Peshawar

A suicide bomber killed at least six people and wounded 31 others when he blew himself up outside a local government office in a northwestern Pakistani tribal area yesterday, officials said.

The bombing took place in the town of Jamrud, in lawless Khyber tribal district bordering Afghanistan, where the military has been battling Taliban and Islamist groups.

"At least six people were killed and 31 others were wounded after a suicide bomber detonated himself at the entrance of an office," top Khyber tribal administration official Shahab Ali Shah told AFP.

There were four tribal policemen among the dead and more than 15 other personnel were wounded, four of them critically, Shah said.

Nek Mohammad, another tribal administration official, confirmed the attack. The Pakistani Taliban claimed the attack in a statement on their website.

Pakistan's seven semi-autonomous tribal districts near the Afghan border have long been rife with Taliban and al-Qaeda militants.

Pakistan has been waging a major offensive against insurgent hideouts in the tribal northwest for over a year in a bid to quell an Islamist insurgency that has raged for more than a decade.

Minister for Power, Energy and Mineral Resources Minister Nasrul Hamid when he will visit Iran this year.

In reply to a question, he said they are interested to cooperate with the country's lone oil refiner Eastern Refinery in Chittagong. "With the visit of your Energy Minister, the issue will also be discussed," he added.

Abbas Vaezi mentioned that the Iranian government approached the Bangladesh government in the past and announced their readiness to sell crude oil in a "special way" - by importing goods from Bangladesh to Iran instead of taking money for selling crude oil to Bangladesh.

On Iran's stance on fighting terrorism, he said fighting with terrorism is an international issue and all countries must be involved to defeat these terrorist forces.

But recruitment of Bangladeshi workforce in Iran, he said there is a scope to recruit more people in various sector in Iran from Bangladesh.
