Biden says 'wouldn't win' US presidency

US vice-president Joe Biden, who reached second place in the presidential race, said he would still be president if he chose to run again. He said: "I'm not running again." He is the second US presidential candidate to drop out of the race, following Donald Trump, whom Biden has been succeeded as frontrunner in the race, said Biden's campaign. Biden's campaign said: "We're not running again."

Man held after Belgium bomb attack

A man was arrested on Tuesday for the first time in a series of militant attacks in the Belgian capital.

The man, identified as a 24-year-old Belgian, a former soldier, was arrested about 100 miles from Brussels, a spokesman said. He was held under a generalised security order, which allows police to detain someone without naming them or giving details of their whereabouts.

Underworld don Chhota Rajan arrested in Bali

The Indian criminal

Chhota Rajan, known as the "Godfather of Indian organised crime", has been arrested in Bali, Indonesia, police said on Tuesday. He was arrested at a hotel in Denpasar, the capital of the island of Bali, where he had been staying since last month. He is wanted for the killing of his son-in-law, a British tourist, in 2008.

NYPD calls for boycott of Tarantino films

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio has demanded a boycott of Quentin Tarantino's new film, "The Hateful Eight", after the film's opening night was marred by racial slurs and other incidents.

The director of the film, which features a cast of mostly African Americans, has responded to the accusations.

"We are deeply sorry that our film has caused offence," said Tarantino.
