Iceland's Sagas

Which is the most book-loving nation in the world? A strong contender is Iceland, the remote island nation in the North Atlantic, whose citizens read, write and publish more books per capita than any other people. This magnificent but harsh land was settled around 900 A.D. by the Vikings. Celts from Ireland followed soon. Agriculture was introduced, farms built, and around 1100 A.D., its first parliament was convened.

The country's literary tradition began in the 1300s with the Icelandic Sagas which are splendid examples of medieval literature. Written by unknown authors, they are stories of heroes and everyday people during the settlement. Some of the Sagas involve the Vikings and their bravery. Other Sagas are about Icelandic farmers, merchants, sailors and settlers, describing in great detail their everyday lives and adventures. Today every schoolchild in Iceland knows these Sagas.

Readers used to modern narrative fiction will find the Sagas unusual. That's because much of today's literature hinges on the inner world of the characters. The world is seen through the lens of the individual (a tradition going back to the Renaissance and exemplified by da Vinci's mathematical formalization of perspective.) The Sagas however describe people, things and actions in a direct and objective manner without dwelling on some individual's point of view.

However, this does not mean they are simple. The Sagas can be poetic, complex and ambiguous. For example, in Egil's Saga, the protagonist, a farmer, is also poet whose poems sprinkle the story. Yet he is a ferocious warrior, capable of staggering brutality.

From the savagery of his youth, Egil matures to a wise old man, the story showing us a deeply complex human character.

For me an attractive feature of the Sagas is their down to earth tone and their closeness to reality. While much of ancient literature such as the Odyssey or the Ramayana are full of fantastical activities of people endowed with supernatural powers, many Sagas are about everyday activities of normal people who deal with life events that we also face today: a greedy neighbour, romance and marriage, a stolen inheritance, and what constitutes justice and fairness. For example, Njal's Saga is a story of two brothers and their families. The most compelling character is a woman, Hallgerdur, who is an independent, brave and crafty soul. The story is modulated by the words of the wise man Njal who dispenses Sage advice on everyday problems, for example, how a husband, deserted by his wife, can get back the dowry (paid in those days by the groom to the bride's family.)

Family and genealogy play an important role in the Sagas. Here is a typical introduction of a character: "There was once a man called Ulf, the son of Bjalfi and Halberra..." Kinsmen are also vital to the stories. Characters such as Egil inherit characteristics from their parents and grandparents and perhaps are fated by them. Characters often sport descriptive names such as Thorfinn the Strong, Valgard the Guileful or even William the Bastard.

If you are interested, several Sagas are available for free download. Some are also available from Penguin Classics books with extensive annotations.

South Korea to give $350m loan

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

South Korea will provide a loan of US$350 million between 2015 and 2017 for infrastructure development in Bangladesh.

A framework agreement to this effect was signed between the two governments in Dhaka on Thursday.

The Economic Development Cooperation Fund (EDCF) loan, operated by Korea Eximbank on behalf of the Korean government, is a type of concessional loan with terms and conditions such as 0.01 percent per annum of interest rate, 40 years of reimbursement period and 15 years of grace period, said a Korean embassy press release.

'Woman pours' boiling water on husband in capital

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A man suffered burns all over the body allegedly after his wife poured boiling water on him while he was asleep in their Kalyanpur residence in the capital early yesterday.

Raza Mollah, 35, is undergoing treatment at Dhaka Medical College Hospital.

His wife, Selina Begum Sheli, had a quarrel with Raza on Thursday night, said victim's brother Razib Mollah. Selina, mother of a seven-year-old girl, went into hiding following the incident, he added.

When contacted around 5:30pm, Darussalam police said nobody lodged any complaint in this regard.

3 trafficked boys return home

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Dinajpur

Three teenage Bangladeshi boys, who were trafficked to India at different times, returned home yesterday.

Rafiquzzaman, officer-in-charge of Hili Immigration, received the boys from his Indian counterpart in Dinajpur's Hakimpur upazila and handed them over to their parents.

Badal Mia, 12, of Dinajpur, Mahbub Rahman, 15, of Shariatpur, and Parimal Chandra Paul, 17, of Bogra, were detained by Indian Border Security Force at different borders some three years ago and later they were sent to a shelter home at Balurgat of Dakkhin Dinajpur.

Bangladesh National Women Lawyers Association, and Justice and Care, India, worked together to send the three to their parents.

State should punish

Addressing the programme, Russian Ambassador in Dhaka Alexander A Nikolaev said the key message of the Nuremberg trials was not about taking revenge but retribution for crimes against humanity.

The trial against war criminals in Bangladesh is not a political arrangement, he observed.

There may be a link between the crimes against humanity and genocide the war criminals committed 40 years ago and the offences committed through the recent attacks on bloggers, writers, and publishers, he said.

Former justice Syed Amirul Islam, an adviser of the Ekatturer committee, proposed that the government amend the constitution and international crimes (tribunals) act to discard the option of presidential clemency for convicted war criminals.

Addressing as the chief guest, Jatiya Sangsad Speaker Shirin Sharmin Chaudhury said the war crimes trials were being held to end the culture of impunity and establish the rule of law.

Law Minister Anisul Huq, assistant prosecutor at the tribunals Tureen Afroz and the Ekatturer committee acting president Shahriar Kabir also spoke.

Dhaka Lit Fest launches

Books' stall on the festival grounds.

Another book launching event that generated a full house was "The March to Independence" session where noted economist Rehman Sobhan and eminent lawyer and politician Dr Kamal Hossain reminisced about the years leading to Bangladesh's Liberation War.

Moderated by Mahfuz Anam, editor and publisher of The Daily Star, the event saw the launching of Rehman Sobhan's book "Untranquil Recollections: The Years of Fulfilment" published by SAGE Publications Inc.

The 444-page book with 13 chapters presents Rehman Sobhan's memoirs till the time Bangladesh achieved independence.

Replying to Mahfuz Anam's questions, Rehman Sobhan spoke on how he got involved with nationalist mainstream politics of the country despite his family's links with Nawabs of Dhaka who were involved with Muslim League, one of the parties that opposed the liberation of Bangladesh.

He reflected on how his two economy theory caught the attention of the press at a time when politicians were gagged under the martial law rule of Ayub Khan in the 1960s and how it later formed the basis of the 6-Point demands which led to the nation's movement for autonomy.

Defining himself as an optimist, the octogenarian freedom fighter stressed the need for creating a sense of nationhood again in the country.

Dr Kamal Hossain too said people have to be empowered and unity has to be re-established to fight the problems the country faces today.

HWY blocked protesting

24,000 applicants for the 108 officer (grade-2) posts took the test in the first phase beginning 10:30am.

The agitators moved to the road after the department closed its doors to jobseekers voicing their protest at the sudden announcement.

Christians feeling

Most of them have restricted their movement.

"We will form a human chain and demonstrate in front of the Jatiya Press Club in protest against the killing and threats," Nirmal Rozario, secretary general of Bangladesh Christian Association, told a mass gathering of the community people at Bottomley Home Girls' High School in the capital.

Nirmal and many from the several thousand-strong audience demanded security for clerics. Addressing the programme, Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan Kamal said the attackers of Parolari, who sacrificed 30 years of his life for the wellbeing of people, were beasts. Regarding the threats, the minister told BBC Bangla Service that nobody informed him about the matter, but said they would provide security to the priests and people of the community.
