

James Bond has taken me to incredible places -Daniel Craig

Daniel Craig may have fuelled speculation about the possibility of not returning as James Bond but the actor says embodying the popular character in four movies has taken him to great places. Craig, who is credited for introducing a more physical and vulnerable aspect to the 007 agent, had recently kicked up headlines by saying that he has had enough of the character. However, in a chat with journalists while promoting the movie in Cancun, Mexico this June, the 47-year-old actor seemed nostalgic about his journey from "Casino Royale" to the latest "Spectre".

"Spectre", the 24th James Bond film, produced by Albert R Broccoli's EON Productions, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, and Sony Pictures was released on November 6 in English, Hindi, Tamil and Telugu. Oscar winner Christoph Waltz, Ralph Fiennes, Naomie Harris, Lea Seydoux, Monica Bellucci, Dave Bautista and Andrew Scott also star in the movie.

ADELE'S '21'

Oscar-winning singer Adele's "21", that released in 2011, has been named the greatest album of all time by Billboard. The album topped magazine's Billboard 200 album list for its lengthy chart run, reported Entertainment Weekly. "Adele's blockbuster 21 tops the Billboard 200's all-time albums ranking, fueled not only by the set's 24 nonconsecutive weeks atop the list (the most weeks at No 1 for an album by a woman), but also its lengthy chart run in the upper reaches of the tally," read a post on Billboard

The second in the list was the soundtrack to "Sound of Music," while Michael Jackson's "Thriller" came third. Having hits like "Rolling in the Deep" and "Set Fire to the Rain," the 27-year-old singer earned six Grammys, including Album of the Year for "21".

Battle with depression led to Dwayne Johnson's WWE career

Before Dwayne 'The Rock' Johnson made it big in the wrestling and movie industry, the "Ballers" actor had a tough fight with depression. Johnson, 43, opened up about his battle with depression after failing to make it into the NFL and being cut from the Canadian Football League.

"I found that with depression one of the most important things you could realise is that you're not alone. You're not the first to go through it. I wish I had someone at that time who could just pull me aside and say, 'Hey, it's going to be okay.'," said Johnson.

The 43-year-old "San Andreas" actor then decided to follow in father Rocky's footsteps and get into the family business of professional wrestling afterwards.
