2015 has been undoubtedly a year for breaking records; be it Music, TV, or Film. With 2016 here, we at Star Showbiz thought we should look back at the best that the passing year had to offer before we bid it goodbye and usher in the New Year. So do enjoy our picks and we wish our readers a Happy New Year.

MOVIES

FURIOUS 7

This film has seen an unprecedented crisis as one of its lead stars, Paul Walker, passed away in an automobile accident, leading some to believe this movie might either get scrapped or changed drastically. Thankfully, none of those rumours proved right as Furious 7 delivered everything fans had wanted and more, and served as a fitting tribute to the late actor. It also seems that the franchise will carry on as Furious 8 has been announced and is scheduled to begin production soon.

STAR WARS: THE FORCE AWAKENS

While it's still too early to tell if the new trilogy will be as good as the original and not fall into the trap of the prequel trilogies, there is no arguing over the fact that this has been the summit of Hype Mountain for last year. The film was released on December 18th and it has already smashed Opening Day Records and on its way to beat numerous others.

JURASSIC WORLD

Another record smasher, Jurassic World is the highly anticipated sequel to the three previous Jurassic Park movies. With new characters, a new time frame, and a completely fresh story that's based off the original and with a worthy performance by Chris Pratt, this movie was everything every movie goer had hoped for. The movie's success has already started plans for a sequel, so it seems the Jurassic is very much here to stay.

MUSIC

PENTATONIX BY PENTATONIX

Not a household name as of yet, but if their rising popularity is any indication, then that recognition isn't too far off. Starting small, the group leapt forwards with their performances in NBC's The Sing Off. Their true fame came with their tribute performance of Daft Punk, which still remains their highest viewed clip in YouTube. With their latest album, they have put out their own original content and each one is as good as they get.
