Nisho shoots precarious scene

Afran Nisho was seen starting the New Year in a shoot where he had to lie down on a ledge atop a 16 storied building in Uttara. With no safety equipment whatsoever, and the camera pointed directly at him, he was literally inches away from sure death during the scene.

He said, "My own hands and feet were my safety as I wrapped my leg around a metal pipe to save myself from falling."

He uploaded photos from the scene on his Facebook page and was met with fear and excited reactions from his fans. He has constantly experimented with his abilities in front of the camera for the past few years with various ranges of roles, and this was only a continuation of his quest in Shagor Jahan's drama "Neel Chokh", where he plays the role of a street singer, opposite Tisha.

NIPUN'S New Mission

Celebrities have hobbies just like anyone else, although they find little time to pursue them thanks to their busy schedules. However, some pursue those hobbies in the form of businesses and Nipun is the latest addition in that list with her new mission to establish herself as a businesswoman in addition to a popular actress.

The National Award winning actress has said that she has a passion for beautification, styling and makeup, and she has decided to turn this hobby into a business venture through a 4,500 square foot beauty salon venture in Dhaka's Banani named "Tulip Nails and Spa". The salon opened its doors last Monday and was met with throngs of fans and well wishers praising her venture.

Nipun said that she has noticed that people are style conscious all over the world and although they are just as conscious in Bangladesh, the access to proper services are not as available. She said that, "I myself feel this absence in the availability of proper services, thus my initiative to try and change this situation from Bangladesh with global standard services by 5 specialists from Thailand."
