

Pay disparity wasn't something I got upset about

Juhi Chawla

The issue of pay disparity has become a rage in Bollywood now, but actress Juhi Chawla says she never got upset about the wage inequality and "accepted" that her male counterparts would get more than her. Actresses like Priyanka Chopra, Deepika Padukone, Kangana Ranaut and Anushka Sharma have openly slammed the Hindi film industry for pay disparity. The actress, who ruled Bollywood during the '90s, feels the issue has always been there and it won't be resolved anytime soon. "Pay disparity has always been there. It was there during our times too. There was no problem. It wasn't something I got upset about. But it is alright and pretty much the same now," Juhi said.

When asked if it is high time, the pay gap should be reduced, the actress replied, "Even if I feel that way, I don't see it going away easily. It won't go overnight."

Rock band Radiohead releases unused JAMES BOND THEME SONG

Rock band Radiohead has offered a surprise to their fans, a new song which was initially recorded for the latest James Bond film 'Spectre'. Thom Yorke, frontman of the band, said they were asked to write the theme for the twenty fourth James Bond film last year, but it "didn't work out" well.

"Last year we were asked to write a tune for the Bond movie 'Spectre'. Yes we were. It didn't work out. But became something of our own which we love very much. As the year closes we thought you might like to hear it. Merry Christmas and May the force be with you," Yorke posted on Twitter on Friday.

Later, singer Sam Smith's single "Writing's on the Wall" was chosen as the official theme song for 'Spectre', which starred Daniel Craig, Christoph Waltz, Dave Bautista and Monica Bellucci among others.

There's a lot more to happen in 'Quantico', Alex will change

Priyanka Chopra

Fans of Priyanka Chopra and 'Quantico' brace yourself for 'Quantico' has just received the thumbs up for extending the series. Chopra's TV series has not just extended the episodes to 22, but has been dubbed in as many as 44 languages. You can imagine the rising popularity of the TV series!

She said, "We were supposed to be 13 episodes but it's done really well, we have gone to around 100 territories around the world, dubbed the show in 44 languages including Spanish, Italian and German, so it's become a really big show which is why ABC has extended it to 22 episodes for one season." The actress also informed that from March, the show will get more complicated and entertaining. Even the protagonist Alex Parrish – played by Priyanka Chopra will undergo a lot of changes.
