Scars of a sinners

In Inferno, Dante and Virgil see the very depths of hell and the damned inhabitants in their torment. How will such a journey take us in this day and age? A walk through the alleys of Dhaka; a claustrophobic existence within the small rooms of our apartments and amidst the mad rush after fame and fortune, we have stepped into a world where sins are imbibed with our very existence.

We lead lives of sinners; or has the bar of the 'deadly' been lowered in this age? Allow us to take you through a spin on the deadliest sins - a dark look at our darkest reality. And then there is this cynical denial, where every sin is glorified and every sin trivialised.
