

EDDIE REDMAYNE will be hands on father

Actor Eddie Redmayne is feeling "joy, excitement and a bit of fear" about becoming a father. "The Danish Girl" actor is excited about the impending of his and wife Hannah Bagshawe's first child, though he admits he is also feeling a little bit scared of the big change and responsibility. "It's our first child, so obviously there's a mixture of emotions. Joy, excitement and a bit of fear. I can't wait. I'll be a hands-on dad," Redmayne said. And the 'Theory of Everything' star, who married Bagshawe in 2014, admits becoming a father will cap off an "amazing" period in his life.

"Having a baby is the perfect ending to what's been an amazing year. I still pinch myself - every actor thinks about living the Hollywood dream and making it over here is incredible. I'll always stay grounded and I don't take anything for granted," he said.

Ellie Goulding is going to take a break from music

Ellie Goulding is taking a break from music, but she's definitely not quitting the industry, as some newspapers have claimed. The singer tweeted: "Just having a break. It's been seven years since I had time off..." She's currently in the middle of a world tour which finishes in October and will play Radio 1's Big Weekend in May. The 1975, Coldplay, Bring Me the Horizon, Chase & Status and Craig David will also play in Exeter during the bank holiday weekend. In the past seven years she's released three albums, made 29 music videos, won two Brit Awards and been on six tours.

SONU NIGAM sings for musical short film 'First Date'

Singers Sonu Nigam and Jonita Gandhi have crooned for a musical short film titled "First Date" which vouches to take people back to the "era of innocent love". The recently released film talks about a couple which takes a step back to stand their ground during adversity and cherish what love truly means.

"This song beautifully captures the unspoken sweet-nothings of young love. As an artist, I think The Moody Nation is providing a great platform and opportunity to budding talent. Also, I feel we should promote Indie music majorly. I had a wonderful experience working with the team," Nigam said in a statement.

Talking about the new campaign, Roposo co-founder and chief executive officer Avinash Saxena said: "Roposo is all about youth, embracing your individuality, and basking in your creative expression. This album beautifully describes the sincere emotions and fervent expressions of today's youth."
