Send able officers abroad to serve migrants better

Recommend former ones of expatriate welfare ministry
STAFF CORRESPONDENT
Former officials of the expatriate welfare ministry's labour wing yesterday recommended appointing experienced, skilled and devoted officers to foreign missions to better serve and protect rights of nationals working there.
They must have concrete information about the respective labour market and specific ideas about the economy, society and politics, they added.
The 15 officials who served in migrant receiving countries including Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Libya, Malaysia and Singapore were sharing their experience at a programme organised by the ministry in the capital's Probashi Kalyan Bhaban.
They suggested introducing periodical performance evaluation, awards for outstanding services, punitive measures for lapses and six-month's attachment with the ministry to gather experience.
"...the officials will remain alert...workers will get better services," said one. The officials included Kazi Kalam, Imdadul Hauque (Saudi Arabia) and Mantu Kumar Biswas (Malaysia).
Minister Nurul Islam said the officials must play a significant role in creating a demand for job and have an "important role in protecting the rights".

Shafik's arrest politically organised by Jatiya Gonotantrik Party in the capital's Photo Journalists Association auditorium seeking the release.

The arrest was made by detectives at Shafik's Eskaton residence. He was taken on a five-day remand in a case over alleged attempts to abduct and kill the prime minister's son Sajeb Wazed Joy.
"An old political party like Awami League has become totally bankrupt and now they have no politics...this regime mainly took a stance against differences of opinions, freedom of expression and democracy with a motive to anyhow cling to power," Fakhru said.
He alleged that the government was gradually arresting in "false and fabricated" cases and putting behind bars those who talk in favour of democracy and freedom of speech and hold differing opinions.
In a statement, he also criticised the police plea before a court to show Amar Desh Editor Mahmudur Rahman arrested in the case, saying the government has been filling "false cases" against him one after another to "make him weak" and "disrupt his mental stability".
Meanwhile, the BNP chairperson's advisor, Shamsuzzaman, at a human chain in front of Jatiya Press Club, lambasted the government for the arrest, saying attempted murder charges had been filed and torture in remand were being inflicted upon a person who could not "even kill a fly".
