

A Chinese farewell party for FARAH KHAN

Stanley Tong's Indo-Chinese film starring Jackie Chan, Amyra Dastur, Sonu Sood and Disha Patani has been in news since quite some time now, for the fun things they do. One such thing is the recent farewell party that the crew threw for choreographer turned filmmaker Farah Khan, on the last day of the shoot. Khan had been to Beijing to choreograph a Bollywood-themed song for the film; the team was sceptical if Jackie would be comfortable performing the steps, however the end result seems quite impressive as he did all the moves with ease.

The on-set pictures of Amyra and Jackie Chan that the former often shares on social networking sites and fun things that they do, like Sonu Sood replacing his dumbbells for a petite Amyra, states that the actors are having a great time shooting for the film.

Actors Robert Downey Jr and Guy Ritchie will be starting work on a third movie in 'Sherlock' series before the end of the year. The film has been in the pipeline for nearly five years.

"We're talking about it right now. We can do some preliminary stuff," Downey Jr told Shortlist - putting those fears at bay. If we could shoot it on Skype, we could have the whole (movie) done in a week.

"When we're making those Sherlock movies, it is off the hook. (So) we'll attempt to make one this year. It really is a big deal to go and do those movies. I'm tired all the time, but I'm so excited about it," Downey Jr said. The movie will be a follow-up to Ritchie's 2009 'Sherlock Holmes' and 2011's follow-up 'Sherlock Holmes: A Game of Shadows.'
