on a 'spiritual mission'

Singer Justin Bieber is on a "spiritual mission". The 22-year-old singer had "an epiphany" recently, which led him to believe that he needs to reconnect with religion and nature. During days off from his "Purpose" world tour, he has been spotted meditating in parks and enjoying some solo strolls.

"He believes nature and religion - not concert venues and nightclubs - should become his life priorities," said a source. Meanwhile, Bieber recently upset fans when he declared that he will no longer take pictures with them because it makes him feel like a "zoo animal".

KATE HUDSON

'Bride Wars' star Kate Hudson says she sometimes feels 'torn down' by Hollywood but is glad she has her mother, fellow actress Goldie Hawn, to go to for advice. The 37-year-old star feels there is a really difficult side to the film industry.

Speaking at the 2016 Forbes Women's Summit at Pier Sixty in New York, she said,

"In Hollywood, everyone wants to build you up and tear you down. My mother had a driver who came to the house to take her to work and I hated it. He would take my mother away. But what it taught me was how hard she worked to create opportunities for other women. She was a trailblazer in Hollywood."

in high demand by sports brands

Katrina Kaif's performance and impressive abs at the opening ceremony of the Indian Premier League (IPL) is reaping lucrative sporty deals for her. The actress has been getting many offers to endorse sports brands, a development that has reportedly been confirmed by her spokesperson.

Katrina's newly acquired fit frame has caught the attention of major sports brands. She has been approached by four brands, two of whom belong to the health and fitness space. Katrina is yet to give a nod to any of them. "The details of the deals are unknown as the paperwork is yet to be finalised. She is taking her time to go over them as she is very particular about the brands she endorses," commented a source.
