

The Print Screen Button

Bullying can be a big slippery slope. One day you're throwing in a light joke and the next thing you know, you're shoving someone into a barrel and letting gravity do its work.

Likewise, people often think that cyberbullying is completely okay in some cases. Vigilante justice aside, there's a Facebook group that shares messages from [alleged] cyberbullies and then delivers a dose of cyberbullying to them in the name of "justice". Let's not even talk about Photoshop being at work. The verification goes about as far as the poster's English language skills. Then of course, there are the meme pages which share screenshots of people's social media misdoings with the very simple logic of "If they're this dumb, they deserve it." Oh, Internet...

— Rumman R Kalam, Sub-editor, Shout.

MIXTAPE

WAVES

Iron & Wine

Waves of Galveston

Scenic

Shockwaves

Ron Pope

A Drop in the Ocean

Greg Laswell

Comes and Goes

U2

Every Breaking Wave

Tom Rosenthal

About the Weather

APP REVIEW

FADING LIGHT Before Darkness Prevails

SALMA MOHAMMAD ALI

Platform: Android

In Fading Light you control a pixel of light and navigate by tapping left or right on your screen. If that sounded basic and boring - the path happens to be a treacherous, dark maze and your pixel has limited light. When this runs out you're plunged into darkness and the game ends. Basically you have to quickly manoeuvre through the maze while your light is fading dimmer and dimmer and try to reach the finish line. Luckily you can collect light crystals along your way to recharge.

The maze walls' colour is also an important factor. Coming in contact with green walls has no effect on your light, blue walls drain it slowly and red walls cause an instant blackout. There are four game modes, each with various levels - Easy (green walls), Medium (blue walls), Hard (red walls) and Extreme which is an insanely tough mode where the walls, which you must avoid, are invisible. The controls are extremely easy to learn but the maze gets tougher with each level bringing new obstacles to test your reflexes. Once your light fades completely, you can play again right away without the need to wait for more 'lives' or get them through nasty purchases.

Overall, it's a challenging, quick paced game with nice, glowing visuals. Better background music would have further enhanced what is already very enjoyable gameplay.

THIS WEEK'S HORRORSCOPE

ARIES

Take a grain of rice. Now sniff it.

TAURUS

Your uncle will ask you to stop calling him bhai.

GEMINI

Play an old game the child inside you likes.

CANCER

Hmm. Supple. Soft.

LEO

Ask your local shopkeeper how much you should charge him per hour.

VIRGO

If you give out GoT spoilers, you'll get spoilers on your wedding night too.

LIBRA

Do you really need this job?

SCORPIO

I'm going to make you come... to my house.

SAGITTARIUS

Squat; hope for peace.

CAPRICORN

You da best.

AQUARIUS

If you're as pretty as a doll, where do I put in the batteries?

PISCES

It's okay if it feels good. The doctor knows it.

