

James Franco

to star in 'Drunken Fireworks' adaptation

Actor James Franco has been cast to play the lead in 'Drunken Fireworks,' a film adaptation of Stephen King's 2015 short story. The actor would serve as executive producer and may direct the project as well.

The story is set in small-town rural Maine. It revolves around a blue-collar mechanic, Alden McCausland (Franco), who competes with a retired mob boss Nicky Serrano when Nicky moves in across the lake from Alden and his mother. When Nicky ruins Alden's Fourth of July fireworks show, Alden puts on the best to beat Nicky next year, in the town's annual fireworks competition known as the 'Fourth of July Arms Race.'

The script is being written by Matthew Rager, who previously worked with Franco on films like 'As I Lay Dying,' 'The Sound and the Fury.'

SONAM KAPOOR'S

heartfelt 'ode to her favourite actress' Nutan Samarth Bahl

Actress Sonam Kapoor has penned a heartfelt message on social media on the birth anniversary of yesteryear star Nutan Samarth Bahl, better known as Nutan. Remembering the veteran actress, the 'Masakali' girl took to her Instagram page and shared a picture wherein she is seen dressed like 90's actress and wrote, "This was an ode to #nutan my favourite actress from the golden era of Indian cinema besides #Waheedaji."

The 'Neerja' star continued, "It's her birth anniversary today and I just want to say I'm grateful for the legacy she left behind through her brilliant work, Bandhini, Saraswati Chandra, Milan, Sujata, Meri Jung to name a few. You were the flag bearer for strong female roles... #flashback #nutan #hero #heroine."

NIMRAT KAUR

is social media shy

While the world shares their whereabouts on social media, 'The Lunchbox' actress Nimrat Kaur is still not very comfortable doing so. Though she is quite active on social media, but the concept in general doesn't go down well with the actress.

Kaur likes to keep her personal and professional life to herself and not make it public. In a recent interview she said that she's not the kind to be hooked on to social networking sites. She thinks it's very tiring, though the actress likes to post once in a while but does not like to go overboard with it. After 'Airlift' the actress will be seen in M. Night Shyamalan's upcoming sci-fi drama series.
