ACC also approved charge sheets against two people for allegedly misappropriating about Tk 594 million.

Female model 'commits suicide over family feud'

STAFF CORRESPONDENT
A female model allegedly committed suicide over a family feud in the capital's Mohakhali yesterday.
Soheli Rahman Nitti, 28, daughter of retired superintendent of police Motiur Rahman, hang herself from a ceiling fan in her residence following an altercation with her husband, said Sridham Chandra Roy, sub-inspector of Banani police, quoting her husband Abhijit Bachhi.
Abhijit took her unconscious body to Mohakhali's Metropolitan Hospital where the on-duty doctors declared her dead at 2:45am, added the SI.
However, locals saw Abhijit beating Nitti after entering their house, witnesses told the police.
According to her father Motiur, as her first marriage did not work out, she married Abhijit without family consent. Two days back Nitti told her father that she was in an abusive marriage and was often beaten by Abhijit, but Motiur took no heed of the matter at that time.
Police detained Abhijit for quizzing and the deceased's body was sent to Dhaka Medical College Hospital for an autopsy, said the SI.
Motiur said he would file a case against Abhijit.

- who helped design Annesha 3B at KIT's lab and their mentor Prof Mengu Cho, director of the Laboratory of Spacecraft Environment Interaction Engineering (LaSEINE), joined the programme from Japan and University of Texas Assistant Prof Dr Arifur Rahman Khan joined from USA, through Skype.
Compared to conventional hi-cost communications satellites, nanosats are smaller in size, weighing between one and 10kg, and can be placed in low earth orbit, 500 to 1,500km above the equator, instead of the more expensive to launch and geostationary earth orbit satellites, placed around 36,000km away from earth.
Head of Brac University's mathematics and natural sciences (MNS) department Prof Dr Abu Abdullah Ziauddin Ahmad, its computer science and engineering (CSE) department's Associate Prof Dr Md Khalilur Rahman and a Japanese embassy counselor in Dhaka Mitsutake Numahata, also spoke at the programme.
The departments of CSE, MNS, and Electrical and Electronic Engineering (EEE) of Brac University are involved in the nanosat programme.
Speakers said the nanosat venture came in good synchronisation with Bangladesh's first communication satellite as it would help expose the country's young scientists and academics to satellite technology.
Vice-Chancellor Dr Syed Saad Andaleeb said Brac University has decided to open a satellite laboratory and, "one day we'll build satellites at our own laboratory."
He explained the nomenclature of Annesha 3B saying that the 3B stood for Bangladesh, Brac and BIRDS. BIRDS is the name of the KIT's project under which the satellite programme is being carried out.
BTRC DG Nasim Pervez credited Brac University for having the vision and building the future of Bangladesh's satellite technology. Col Nasim said there is a huge prospect for young Bangladeshis to work and gain in the field of satellites.
Showing a design module of the Annesha 3B, Prof Ziauddin, also a former chairman of the Bangladesh Space Research and Remote Sensing Organization (SPARRSO), said, "It's a small box but a giant stride for us."
Prof Khalil informed the audience that the final design module would be completed by the end of the month, lab testing to be completed in November and handed over to JAXA in the year-end. Then in March, JAXA rocket would take the nanosat to ISS, who would deploy the satellite in the low earth orbit through its robotic arms.
Once placed in orbit, the satellite would generate high quality photographs of Bangladesh, meteorological data, vegetation, flood, urbanisation, sea area etc and the students and faculties would be able to analyse those for academic and research purposes.
