

Armadio's main aim is to design dresses showcasing different cuts and embroidery works; starting from thread to sequin and even lace. These detailed works are done on mainly muslin, chiffon and silk; pastel and nude shades get most of the attention this Eid, keeping the sweltering summer in mind.

Even with unlimited options to choose from, shopping at Armadio ensures that you'll stand out in the crowd, wearing something that is fashionable and unique, since they do not remake a piece, and customising the colour or fabric is also an advantage they offer their customers. Offering kameez from the range of 2,000 taka to 8,000 taka, and saris from 10,000 taka to 40,000 taka, Armadio even gives you a wide range of clothes and budget to choose from.

For men, along with their full time suit tailoring, this Eid, they're offering different, subtle toned, cotton blend panjabis. The men's line also has benefits with the choice of customising their products. Kotis are also available at their store. Panjabis range from 2,000 taka to 7,000 taka and kotis are about 6,000 taka; you're sure to find something eye catching.
