When East Meets West

Zarin Rashid's debut collection, 'When East Meets West', is a collaboration of her thoughts and culture. She was always inspired by the whole idea of traditional wear; but living abroad, she developed a taste for the western culture as well. She thought of creating a fusion of both and hence, came up with this line. Her ensemble consists of dresses that gives off a gown-like vibe but has the structure of Bengali traditional wear. She held her first-ever show at Gulshan's Bay Edgewater Gallery on 24 June, 2016. It featured 16-18 of her pieces that were all made and brought back from Toronto to Dhaka. Choreography for this show was done by Limi and makeup was done by Bridal Studio.

LE REVE'S EID

Le Reve recently launched its Eid collection, which is full of amazing designs and patterns. Whether it is heavily embroidered outfits or simple printed lawns or chiffon tunics, all these styles are unique and showcase the very new and festive prints of the season.

Every region has its very own culture and heritage as well as an unique lifestyle followed by its people. Folk lores are an inspiration for designs. An example would be Palestinians' use of grapes, cauliflowers, pigeons, rainbows, roses, flower vases et al as motifs for their clothes. We too, have our own pride and very own traditions, symbolising moon, flowers, trees, birds, fishes, charkaa, nagar dolas, dolls, etc. These are being used as motifs for our clothes in kantha stitch, cross-stich and so on.

Le Reve has drawn inspiration and has brought to you motifs from different regions, rendered over karchupi, skin print embroidery, glass work as well as different types of dye techniques.

Director of Creative and Design Monnujan Nargis said, "We are dedicated to providing the trendiest and most fashionable outfits for our customers keeping in mind the global trends while simultaneously representing our culture and heritage."

Le Reve has brought newly designed shalwar kameez sets, tunics, tops, shirts, fatuas and skirts for women. To make the festival more bright and colourful, all the dresses feature shiny and glossy embroidery. There is also patch-work as well as hand designed print embroideries such as Chinese neckline. Le Reve is also introducing kimono-style tunic and asymmetric patterns as well as sleeve design, rap neckline and belts.

Meanwhile, men's lineup includes panjabis in different motifs, casual shirts on stripes, Polo shirts, t-shirts, denim pants, chinos and shorts. There are many colours and fabrics.

Le Reve's Eid collection also features a wide range of children's costumes which are comfortable, bright and carry brand new styles and designs. The gallery includes shalwar kameez sets, frocks, tunics, t-shirts, skirt-tops, three-quarters, denims, panjabis and much more.

Le Reve Eid collection is available in all of their outlets. You can visit their website and order online at www.lerevecraze.com.
