Relishing the Romantics

Our fascination with romantic characters probably comes from fairytales with happy endings that we read as little ones. The range of romantic stories that we studied as teens, especially Shakespeare's plays, add fuel to the fire. Then comes adulthood, when we watch romcoms like Jerry McGuire and Notting Hill, converting all of us into life-sized fans of romance, passion and courtship.

It is good to be influenced by all that is dreamy and nice because when the world is cruel to you at least you can pamper yourself with good thoughts and be hopeful. One of the easier ways of doing 'all that' is to wear things that let you feel part of the fantasy.

So here are a few suggestions on how to re-create that magical experience with the help of a Shakespearean play – A Mid Summer Night's Dream!
