

The wall in the back can be done using a traditional 'pot chitra' that can serve to offset the neutral uses of the pieces placed on the floor.

Most of the pieces here are not identical, and do not "match" with each other in a straight forward manner, but have been brought together in a manner to produce harmony.

The rule for home decor is that there are no rules. Here, an attempt has been made to use common household accessories to transform them into pieces of decor. One does need to strictly follow any of these concepts, but they can all serve as ideas which you can use depending on the look and the touch of life that you are trying to add to your spaces.

By Sania Aiman

Photo: Sazzad Ibne Sayed