However, the new shape of kurtas and kameezes are such that the sweltering heat outside will be the last thing on one's mind. They have been given a roomy, flared avatar, which makes them breezy and comfortable. Sherwani-style collar is a perennial favorite, and is very appropriate, elegant choice for evening soirees. Jacket-style long kurtas with rich, heavy embroidery adds glamour and panache to one's Eid ensemble, and brings in the right spirit. At night it is okay to indulge and go for rich colors like black and maroon. Sharara-pants are all the rage now, and it looks fabulous when worn with a fitted, Sherwani-style kameez. It provides a wonderful balance of shape, making the upper part of the body shapely and slim. For nighttime one needs to up the ante when it comes to makeup. A smoky eye in rich shades of brown and grey will look fabulous, and contoured cheeks and a deep shade of lipstick will put the right finishing touches. With these ideas you are bound to make an elegant statement while keeping cool this Eid!

Spitfire Reopens

Spitfire Barbeque and Grill officially reopened on the 26th of August, 2016. A small re-opening ceremony was arranged for friends, family and well-wishers of the popular Dhaka restaurant. Sticking to the tried and tested, Spitfire returns true to its form with a few notable embellishments, of course.

The signature dishes of Spitfire, which gained popularity for its delicious steak preparations, are currently their Spitfire Lamb Steak, Seafood Royal Grilled Platter, Royal Grilled Platter and Grilled Lamb Chop, among others. The Rib-eye Steak, filet mignon, Salmon Carpaccio, Prawn Satay etc are also all available. The taste has yet to have been lost in the shuffle and this bodes well for the restaurant, however as it was just a re-opening not much can fairly be said about the food or the service.

Amidst the revelry of the reopening, a perceptible tension was noticeable, given the tragedy that has refused to leave the residents and visitors to Gulshan. However, Spitfire has kept the security concerns in mind with a seven layer security system. Armed security personnel man the gates whilst metal detector doors are placed right at the main entrance. The entire compound is under CCTV camera surveillance while there is bullet proof glass interior, three emergency exits at the backdoor and finally, the restaurant staff are well trained to combat against security threats.

Spitfire Barbeque and Grill offers a safe place for you and the finest cuisine. It is located at NWF-8, Gulshan North Avenue, Gulshan-2, Dhaka-1214.
