Iran offers hotel tax breaks in bid to boost tourism

AFP, Tehran

Iran offered up to 13 years of tax holidays to hoteliers at an international tourism summit on Sunday as it seeks to boost visitor numbers and revamp its dilapidated hotels.

"All economic activities related to... tourism will enjoy 100 percent tax holidays between five to 13 years depending on the region," deputy economy minister Mohammad Khazaei told hoteliers from 18 countries who had gathered in Tehran, many from Europe.

Since the lifting of international sanctions under last year's nuclear deal, the moderate government of President Hassan Rouhani has made tourism a top priority for rebuilding Iran's struggling economy.

Visitor numbers have already boomed in recent years thanks to a partial thaw in the country's relations with the world, rising from 2.2 million annually in 2009 to 5.2 million in 2015.

By 2025, they are hoping to reach 20 million visitors a year.

crafts sector, said the minister for roads and urban development, Abbas Akhoundi. Projects to build some 170 four- and five-star hotels are already under way, he added.

"We are working actively on 10 to 15 projects in Iran," Christophe Landais, chief operating officer for France's Accor Hotels in Iran, told AFP. Accor was the first international company to open hotels after the historic nuclear deal -- an Ibis and Novotel outside Tehran's Imam Khomeini airport last September.

Landais said the group also hopes to tap the huge religious tourism market of Iran's second city, Mashhad, which hosts the mausoleum of a key figure in Shiite history, the Eighth Imam.

"Mashhad is the destination for pilgrims. Actually Mashhad receives more pilgrims than Mecca in Saudi Arabia -about 25 million," he said.

A hotel operator from the United Arab Emirates said he was also about to sign a contract in Mashhad. Apprehension of further attacks could hurt Bangladesh's economic prospects. It will decrease foreign investment and lead to more capital flight as investors feel insecure about making investment decisions in an uncertain security context.

The country's export-oriented sectors, especially the apparel industry, are once again facing an image problem when it comes to foreigners' security in Bangladesh, according to the report.

Another potential economic impact could stem from the counter-measures that are adopted. The installation of security measures is costly.

Terrorist attacks can result in greater spending on unproductive activities such as heightened counterterrorism measures, expanding paramilitary and police forces, and stricter border controls. The money diverted to extra surveillance and policing rather than investment and trade may eventually pose a drag on growth. "Over time, this friction in the economic system can have substantial effects," the WB said. The economy remains resilient despite internal and external challenges, said Qimiao Fan, WB's country director for Bangladesh, Bhutan, and Nepal, while releasing the report to the media at his office in Dhaka. He lists stagnant private sector investment, slowdown in remittance, weakness in the financial sector and security concerns as challenges confronting Bangladesh.

adversely affected investor confidence; the recent terrorist attacks have only added to the anxiety. Bangladesh runs the risk of losing both domestic and foreign investor interest if the fear of more such attacks is not assuaged. "The government needs to provide a positive message about the foreign as well as domestic investors," the WB said in the report. Private investment as a percentage of gross domestic product declined to a three-year low of 21.78 percent in fiscal 2015-16, despite macroeconomic stability. However, a significant rise in public investment led to an increase in total investment in relation to GDP: from 28.9 percent in fiscal 2014-15 to 29.4

percent in fiscal 2015-16. The increase in public investment is attributable to the government's expenditure on infrastructure projects. However, these do not necessarily translate into infrastructure assets because of leakage and inefficiency in the public investment process.

As a result of falling private investment, the gap between the environment, the recent gap between projected and actual private investment rates could The report said private investors are discouraged from investing in Bangladesh because of infrastructure deficits, scarcity and high prices of land, corruption, political uncertainty and, of late, concerns about security.

But there is scope to make profit by doing business in Bangladesh, said Zahid Hussain, lead economist of the WB's Dhaka office and also the author of the report. "But the investment climate has to be improved."

The WB said the government's GDP growth for fiscal 2015-16, provisionally estimated at 7.05 percent by the Bangladesh Bureau of Statistics, has been healthy despite slowing private investment and remittance.

The multilateral lender projected Bangladesh's economy would grow at 6.8 percent in the current fiscal year.

It said progress on the ease of doing business has been slow. Inadequate infrastructure, financial intermediation, bureaucratic inertia and corruption continue to hinder domestic as well as foreign investment. The lack of effective alternative dispute resolution mechanisms actual and the projected figures of and slow judicial processes tracts and the resolution of business disputes. The WB said inflation has slowed, benefitting from soft global commodity prices, but remains high relative to global inflation and inflation in peer countries. The WB report said the management of the current $31 billion reserves is becoming increasingly challenging.

Elevated reserves provide a comfortable cushion underpinning the exchange rate and foreign trade, but they can also lead to inflationary pressures, asset bubbles and pressure for sterilisation. Bangladesh Bank has consistently maintained reserves in safe but low-yielding foreign government securities with high liquidity.

The return on these investments has declined from 1.15 percent in 2011 to 0.61 percent in 2015, although they have persistently exceeded the 6-month USD London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR).

The WB said export earnings grew 9.8 percent last fiscal year, in contrast to 3.4 percent in fiscal 2014-15, driven by rebound of garment exports.

But there has been little progress in terms of product and market diversification, Hussain said.

The WB said the financial sector remains plagued by falling profitability and rising concerns about non-performing loans and capital inadequacy, particularly in state-owned commercial banks.

The SCBs account for nearly 48 percent of total NPLs.

Large loan restructurings have so far failed to produce the intended results, the multilateral

The government has prioritised seven mega projects under the fast-track initiative, but implementation of the projects needs to be accelerated, the WB said. Except for the Padma bridge and Rooppur nuclear power plant first phase, work progress in other projects is in the low single digits.

The current allocation levels are inadequate for all except Padma, Payra port, and Rooppur, On the external side, the WB report said a protracted slowdown in the European Union due to Brexit related uncertainties could hurt exports. Remittances are vulnerable as persistent low oil prices could further worsen investment and employment in host countries. If the ongoing fiscal consolidation in GCC countries is sharper than expected, remittance flows could slow sharply, it said. The lender said greater investment in infrastructure, productivity enhancing technology, and human capital, combined with reforms to enhance financial intermediation efficiency, could lay the foundation for stronger growth. "In addition, addressing energy bottlenecks remains critical for sustaining Bangladesh's long-term growth."

It also said carbon taxes could be very positive for Bangladesh given the potential benefits and their ability to help mitigate risk.

The number of migrants going abroad reached 6.8 lakh in fiscal 2015-16, up 48 percent year-on-year.

About 71.3 percent of the migrants in fiscal 2015-16 went to the GCC countries. Saudi Arabia accounted for the highest incremental share, while a significant number also went to Oman, Qatar and Malaysia. Migration to Singapore has been steady. Female migration has also surged, with the number exceeding 100,000 in fiscal 2015-16 for the first time since fiscal 1991-92. The WB said there has been a rise in unemployment and/or a decline in wages of illegal migrants in the GCC countries in particular as the authorities crack down on illegal migrants. There is anecdotal evidence that the real income of migrants is waning in the GCC countries, as prices for staple goods and public services have increased, according to the report. The unemployment rate among Saudi citizens is 11.5 percent, but relatively few have lost jobs because of legal complexities in firing Saudis. "Hence, the weight of layoffs has fallen on foreign workers," the WB said. Saudi construction firms have been hard hit due to the lower oil prices, which have curbed and, in some cases, delayed government spending on major infrastructure projects. If the ongoing fiscal consolidation in the GCC countries is sharper than expected, remittance flows could slow sharply, the WB said.

The propensity to remit may also have been adversely affected by the decline in interest rates, the report said.

The deposit rate fell from 7.26 percent in January 2015 to 5.67 percent in May 2016. The interest rate on national savings certificates was cut by 2 percentage points in May 2015. Remittance sent by more than eight million migrant workers plays a crucial role in the country's economy, helping reduce the overall incidence of poverty as well as maintaining a healthy balance of payments.

NBR seeks measures for speedy settlement of tax-related cases

The tax collector also demanded the scope of submission during the hearings. "In many cases, it is seen that petitioners try to secure a stay order against government claims, by raising different issues, instead of the points related to the dispute," said NBR.

The NBR also favoured the settlement of cases of the same nature at a time through verdicts.

To ensure settlement, the NBR has appointed a senior official of each tax zone as a focal point to monitor and oversee progress of the cases, introduced digital suit management systems, appointed retainers and established regular contact with the Attorney General's Office.

The tax authority also plans to list the cases involving Tk

1 crore in taxes or more and coordinate with the Attorney General's Office for hearing.

The Attorney General's Office suggested NBR open an office at the Supreme Court, said the press release.

At the meeting, Attorney General Alam said all parties should come forward to ensure the speedy settlement of cases. Rahman of NBR said the role of the Attorney General's Office is very important in the disposal of court cases related to revenue. The NBR wants to sit with income tax lawyers later this month to discuss the matter, he added.
