Filling owners, tanker workers threaten strike

Demand fee reduction, commission increase
STAFF CORRESPONDENT
Owners and workers of filling stations and fuel tankers yesterday threatened to go on an indefinite strike from 6:00am on October 30 if their 12-point demand, including reduction of fees and increase of commission, remained unmet.
Nazmul Hoque, convener of Bangladesh Petrol Pump Owners Tank Lorry Malik Sramik Oikya Parishad, which observed a nine-hour strike on August 28, made the announcement at a press conference at a hotel in the capital.
If found to be logical, the demands will be met, State Minister for power, energy and mineral resources Nasrul Hamid told The Daily Star.
Filling stations pay some fees annually to Roads and Highways Department, including one for use of space connecting the stations to the road.
Nazmul claimed that filling stations outside metropolitan areas now have to pay over Tk 2 lakh in fees for what the previously paid only Tk 400 for due to "abnormal", "unrealistic" and "unimaginable" increases brought about in October last year.
The commission increase demand was from 4.03 to 7 percent for the total octane and petrol sales and 2.7 to 5 percent for diesel sales, he added. He alleged their petitions to government authorities concerned for the last couple of years went unheeded. "We want the prime minister's intervention," said Nazmul. The parishad says there are around 7,000 filling stations and 26,000 fuel tanks in Bangladesh.

NGOs can't have

Tuesday, Suranjit also refuted the claim that the recently passed "Foreign Donations (Voluntary Activities) Regulation Bill 2016" contradicted the constitution that separately guarantees press freedom along with recognising citizens' freedom of thought, conscience, expression, and speech.
"Freedom of expression is applicable for the citizen, not for any organisation. NGOs are inferior here," he said.
Despite widespread criticism from different quarters, including local and international rights groups, the United Nations Special Rapporteur on the Rights to Freedom of Peaceful Assembly and of Association, European Union, the Jatiya Sangsad on October 5 passed the bill, introducing a punitive provision making it an offence for foreign-funded NGOs to make "inimical" and "derogatory" remarks on the constitution and constitutional bodies.
Expressing their grave concern over the law, NGOs recently said the law would create a scope for limiting fundamental rights including freedom of speech, thought, conscience and organisation, safeguarded by the constitution.
According to the bill, if any foreign-funded NGO engages in anti-state activities and finances extremist and terrorist activities, those would be considered offences under the provision, and the NGO and its officials concerned would be tried under the country's existing laws.
The new provision empowers the NGO Affairs Bureau to cancel or withhold the registration of a foreign-funded NGO or ban its activities for committing the offence.
Asked who will define the words "inimical" and "derogatory", Suranjit said rules would be formulated in this regard after consultation with respective stakeholders.
Different NGOs demanded that the government amend the law through deleting the controversial provision.
Suranjit said NGOs were born through rules; that was why they could not speak foul against parliament or other constitutional bodies.
"If they want to speak like the opposition party, they can enter politics."
