 check-ups by 15 specialists of medicine, orthopaedics, gynaecology, eye, child, heart, skin, and sex, said organisers. The team also comprised 15 interns and eight technicians.

Over 2,000 people received free treatment and medicines, said the organisers.

Muslem Uddin, 90, of Bhati Daspara village, said it was a relief for him as he could not afford to go outside his village for treatment. Janob Banu, 70, from Rudhram expressed the same. "Visiting a doctor was beyond our reach," she said.

Dr Nusrat Sultana, medicine specialist of Community Based Medical College Hospital in Mymensingh, said, "We feel satisfied when we join such camps. It is a great opportunity to treat people of different castes, creeds, and religions."

This camp is very helpful for financially insolvent people living in remote areas, said Molin Bhowmik, ex-headmaster of the Abul Mansur Ahmad school. He urged the organisers to continue the service.

Farzana Tymus, an architect and press and publication secretary of Amec, said the camp, held annually, has been organised around the country.

Amec Vice-President Zinna-tun-Nahar, a lawyer, said it was a part of Amec's social welfare activities, and they wanted it to continue.

Amec President Maj (ret'd) Dr Taslima Ferdous, General Secretary Maksuda Parvin Mimi, Organising Secretary Zohora Ahmed Bipasha, and Group Captain (Ret'd) Mohammad Alamgir, vice-president of Cadet College Club Ltd, were present.

Manik said they postponed the programme as all their people could not fit inside the three vehicles. They drafted a six-point demand and are planning to donate Tk 2 lakh to the victims.

Abu Bakar Siddik, officer-in-charge of Shahbagh police, said, "They can distribute aid items but cannot hold any rally, because there will be a risk of clash if people go there in large numbers."

Nasim assures proposing 'Nat'l Teachers' Day' in Prof Zoha's memory

RU CORRESPONDENT

Rajshahi University Teachers Association (Ruta) held a discussion on Jail Killing Day at the senate building yesterday.

Speakers urged the government to declare February 18 as "National Teachers' Day" in memory of Prof Dr Shamsuzzoha, the then RU proctor and chemistry teacher.

He was shot dead by the Pakistani occupation army in front of the university main entrance on February 18, 1969 while trying to convince the army not to fire at students protesting Sergeant Zahurul Haque's murder.

Health and Family Welfare Minister Mohammed Nasim, the chief guest, pledged to send a proposal to the cabinet to declare the day as "National Teachers Day".

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST WOMEN
Repeal unjust laws
Cedaw urges govt
 DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

The UN Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (Cedaw) yesterday urged Bangladesh to repeal all discriminatory provisions and enact new ones to guard against such inequality.

It urged the parliament to take necessary steps regarding implementation of the present concluding observations between now and the next reporting period under the convention. The Cedaw reviewed women's rights in Bangladesh on November 8 and officially announced its findings, termed concluding observations, published yesterday.

It regrets that despite its previous commitment, the state party has not taken any measures to withdraw its reservations to articles 2 and 16, paragraph 1 (c), of the convention and reiterates that these reservations are incompatible with the object and purpose of the convention.

It, however, said the government brought changes in number of areas like the labour act which increased maternity leave to six months, Persons with Disabilities Rights and Protection Act, Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking Act and Hindu Marriage Registration Act, which provides legal recognition of Hindu marriages.

The committee noted with concern that many discriminatory laws and provisions remain in the national legislation, such as different definitions of a girl child and boy child in various acts, restrictive scope of marital rape in the criminal code, and the lack of jurisdiction of special tribunals for violence against women to hear cases of discrimination against women.

It is also concerned that the personal status laws of the state party regulating marriage, divorce, inheritance, guardianship and custodial rights within various religious groups continue to discriminate against women and girls and that the country is yet to consider adopting a unified family code.
