with her mesmerizing tone when she was requested to sing a few lines from one of Alam Khan's composition. Runa Laila stated that he was a true gentleman and never harsh with anyone and that she was truly grateful to have worked with him.

In his speech, Asaduzzaman Noor, said the government alone cannot take the responsibilities of making the country great; the responsibility to bring up a better generation of tomorrow also rests on families and educational establishments, where the youth spend majority of their time. The Minister also stated, "We cannot merely hold today's youth accountable for the rise of militancy. Someone somewhere is cultivating an environment where it can grow, and we have to find that". He ended his speech on an emotional note, reciting a poem about the Holey Artisan attack.

The CEO of Standard Chartered Bank Abrar A. Anwar mentioned that a nation's development is not complete with just economic advancements. He also added, "Cultural development is an integral part of a country's development. We want to contribute to that, and this initiative is just an effort from us in that direction."

Mahfuz Anam in his speech said, "Patriotism can be expressed in many ways, but to do it through arts is special. Our struggle now is to build this nation. No matter how much personal success we achieve, if we don't have successes as a nation, it will not bring us prestige."
