Election code violation on

EC warns some candidates carrying out campaign before symbol allocation

PANKAG KARMAKAR

A number of mayoral and councillor candidates of Narayanganj City Corporation (NCC) polls are allegedly campaigning in violation of an electoral code that prohibits electioneering before allocation of symbol.

Polls officials have verbally warned some councillor candidates but turned a blind eye to the mayoral aspirants.

Under the electoral code of conduct, no candidate, person, organisation or political party can campaign before allocation of electoral symbols.

Polls symbols for the December 22 NCC election would be allocated on December 5.

However, some candidates have been campaigning for last couple of days in the name of different social programmes to draw the attention of voters.

BNP-nominated mayoral candidate Shakhawat Hossain allegedly campaigned in Masdair area in the name of exchanging greetings yesterday morning. His supporters were chanting slogans and seeking votes for "sheaf of paddy", the electoral symbol of BNP.

Hossain along with his supporters on Tuesday allegedly distributed leaflets in central Kheya Ghat area seeking votes.

Ruling Awami League (AL)-nominated mayoral candidate Selina Hayat Ivy on Monday allegedly conducted campaign in Shaheednagar area in the name of exchanging greetings with women.

Santu Larma on full implementation of CHT peace accord

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Parbatya Chattagram Janasanghati Samity (PCJSS) President Jyotirindra Bodhipriya Larma has mainly blamed the lack of interest on the part of successive governments for the failure to implement the Chittagong Hill Tracts Peace Accord in the last 19 years.

"The government claims it has implemented 48 out of 72 sections of the CHT accord. But in reality, the number is only 25. Publicising such false information proves that the government is not interested in fully implementing the agreement," he said.

Jyotirindra Bodhipriya Larma, also known as Santu Larma, was speaking at a press conference yesterday at a hotel in the capital to mark the 19th anniversary of the accord signing.

Following two decades of conflict, the PCJSS, an

Elected women vice-chairmen in upazila parishad allege non-cooperation from male colleagues, executive officers

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Elected women vice-chairmen of upazila parishads yesterday alleged they did not get proper cooperation from male colleagues and executive officers and eventually face challenges in discharging their duties.

The government has allocated three percent allocation from the upazila's annual development projects for the Women Development Forum, but they do not get that properly and cannot run the projects they are supposed to implement, they added.

They demanded that the government send the three percent allocation directly to the bank accounts of the Women Development Forum.

They raised their voice at a daylong workshop at the Dhaka Divisional Commissioner's Office. The workshop was organised by Upazila Governance Project where women vice-chairmen from 69 upazilas of Dhaka division took part.

The Women Development Forum (WDF) alleged that upazila chairmen and upazila nirbahi officers (UNOs) could not accept the activities of the WDF.

The WDFs were formed with the aim of enhancing capacity of the elected women representatives in union parishads, upazila parishads and municipalities. The forums also aim at empowering women and ensuring their leadership and participation in local government institutions.

"As per a circular, the Women Development Forum should get three percent from the upazila annual development budget, but I did not get that last year or this year," Sheikh Farida Zahan, female vice-chairman of Sreepur upazila in Gazipur, alleged.

MOSUL OFFENSIVE AGAINST IS

5 lakh people in water crisis

AFP, Mosul

Up to 500,000 civilians in Mosul are facing a "catastrophic" drinking water shortage, the UN warned yesterday, as Iraqi forces advance against the Islamic State group in the city.

Already suffering from a severe lack of food and electricity, civilians in Iraq's second city are now also running out of drinkable water, said Lise Grande, UN humanitarian coordinator in Iraq.

"Nearly half a million civilians, already struggling to feed themselves day to day, are now without access to clean drinking water. The impact on children, women and families will be catastrophic," Grande said.

Tens of thousands of Iraqi troops and allied forces launched an offensive last month to retake Mosul, which was seized by IS more than two years ago.

Weeks of fighting have seen the Iraqi forces surround the city and break into its eastern neighbourhoods, where there have been heavy street-to-street battles with the jihadists.

Operations to retake the city have damaged water pipes in recent days and residents in east Mosul say they have resorted to pumping water from wells.

"We don't have water or electricity. We are drinking well water but that's not enough," said Mosul resident Mohamed Khalil, 25.

"Water is the most important thing. We aren't washing. We are going to catch lice and our homes are filthy," said Iman Baker, a 34-year-old mother of three who lives in an eastern neighbourhood recently retaken from IS.

Since the launch of the assault on October 17, more than 70,000 people have fled the fighting, but more than a million people are estimated to remain in the city, including
