

Winter is NOT coming

We're settling into December, and it's still 28 damn degrees. All them Ned Stark memes were lying.

Winter is not coming to Bangladesh; at least definitely not coming to Dhaka. I see people getting their lep and kombol out for dusting and putting them in the sun. WHAT FOR?

I'd like to hear the climate change deniers take on this one. What do they reckon is stopping winter from arriving? The orange glow emanating from the supposed "leader of the free world"?

Go home, December. You're drunk.

Dhaka Noise Project 2016 EP launch

The EMK Center is holding a new type of electronic music event on December 14 – a listening session and the launch of the Dhaka Noise Project 2016 EP (Akaliko Records).

This Dhaka Electronica Scene project, in its first year, brings together electronic music composers to produce tracks that reflect this city where each track uses a set of sounds recorded at various places in the city.

The three composers/producers for 2016 are B Regiment, Moonstruck and After Art who will present their compositions and discuss their thought process in creating them, the production process, and ultimately, the aspect of Dhaka they were trying to reflect followed by a Q&A session.

Dhaka Noise Project itself is designed to be an annual undertaking where the new tracks produced every year will build up a unique multifaceted sonic tapestry of Dhaka.
