

CELEBRATING FIVE YEARS OF THE BENGAL CLASSICAL FEST

The Bengal Classical Fest witnessed many celebrities' presence and profound involvement. Here are some of the nation's finest artists' insights on the prestigious festival.

SYED ABDUL HADI

The Bengal Classical Festival is a wonderful opportunity for our fellow countrymen to know and understand classical music; especially for our young musicians. It will magnify the reverence that we have for classical music because classical music is the heart of music. The crowd itself reflects people's interest. I hope this arrangement continues. I have attended the show twice but couldn't this time due to the timing.

SABINA YASMIN

I really appreciate the Classical Music Fest. The best part is being able to listen to such learned maestros who have so much to give. At the same time we get to meet so many talented people who we didn't even know existed. It's a great opportunity for our young generation to learn more about music. A good ear for music is also quite lacking here, I must add.

FERDAUSI RAHMAN

Classical music is the grammar of music which many of us don't even realise. So if I am asked to comment about the importance of this endeavour then I will say that it is very important. I must say it is a great initiative and that it should go on to enrich our music culture.
