

Why do we still compare?

Recently, there's been some disgruntlement about how consoles are adopting the periodical hardware upgrades that PCs have been exhibiting since forever. PC and console gamers have been exchanging blows regarding graphical fidelity on a much greater scale as of late because of this. This is making us overlook the major problem here. Consoles are supposed to be one-off purchases that will persist for at least 6-7 years. By coming up with these improved versions of consoles, the big companies are getting the opportunity to boost new hardware sales by forcing the consumer to have an inferior experience should they decide to stick with legacy hardware. It's time we addressed this larger issue at hand instead of bickering.

A TWEEZER?

MAGNIFYING GLASS? PEOPLE DID SAY THE SERVINGS WERE A BIT SMALL.

THIS WEEK'S HORRORSCOPE

ARIES

You see that female illusionist? Run.

TAURUS

Red Bull gives you wings. Why do you have a tail, then?

GEMINI

You see blue, I see black. What's wrong?

CANCER

Still addicted to Linkin Park, huh?

LEO

Don't pressurize yourself too much today.

VIRGO

Get a barrel of monkeys. It brings good career luck.

LIBRA

Can I just say you're as interesting as bottled water?

SCORPIO

We don't dab anymore. Like we used to do.

SAGITTARIUS

Sif the Wolf wants to meet you.

CAPRICORN

That vest isn't a good idea.

AQUARIUS

Told you not to mash your keyboard dammit.

PISCES

Now donate your GTX-1070 so that I can SLI.
