

To save from bird menace

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Gaibandha

Vegetable farmers of Tarapur village in Sundarganj upazila have introduced a new technique of netting vegetable fields to protect brinjal from flocks of birds that destroyed the flowers and buds of the vegetable.

To protect the vegetables from the birds, farmer Feroj Mia decided to cover up his field with a net made of thin jute rope. "I spent Tk 7,000 to cover my field with a net, and I have already recovered the production cost within three days of harvesting," he said, adding that brinjal was selling at Tk 800 per maund.

"It is difficult to guard the vegetable fields all day, and covering the fields with nets is a good labour saving technique," Feroj said.

"Seeing the success of Feroj Mia, many vegetable growers have also started using netting system in vegetables fields," said Abul Kashem, another farmer.

It is wise to use netting to protect the brinjal fields, although it causes a little cost for farmers, said Upazila Agriculture Officer of Sundarganj Rashedul Islam.

A brinjal field covered with a net, an ingenious way to protect the vegetables from flocks of birds, innovated by Feroj Mia, a vegetable grower of Tarapur village in Sundarganj upazila of Gaibandha.

LEASING OF GUGALICHERRA RIVER

DC seeks report on alleged malpractice

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Moulvibazar

Upazila nirbahi officers (UNO) of Kulaura and Juri along with other officials yesterday visited Gugalicherra river in Ashurighat area of Kulaura under the district.

Earlier, following a Daily Star report titled "Gugalicherra dying for being leased as wetland" on October 29, the deputy commissioner asked for detailed reports about the river from the UNOs.

"Gugalicherra is a flowing river running through the haor area of Moulvibazar district. But the local administrations leased it, showing it as a 'stagnant water body'," Hashim Mia, 57, a resident of Shahpur village in Juri upazila, said during this correspondent's visit to the river area yesterday.

Tahsina Begum, UNO of Kulaura, said, "I along with Juri UNO visited the Gugalicherra river. After investigation, I will submit report to Moulvibazar deputy commissioner."

"We want cancellation of the lease of Gugalicherra, reinstating its officially recognised category as a river and taking administrative action against the officials who had changed its category to lease it," said Abdul Karim Kim, general secretary of Bangladesh Poribesh Andolon's Sylhet unit.

Sharif Jamil, coordinator of Water Keeper Bangladesh, said the policy to authorise local administration to lease out river areas in the name of degraded wetland would lead to abuse of rivers in different areas of the country.
