

CAN I CANDLE?

Yes you can. Throw away those stereo-types that only women can like incense and scented candles. Why should they get all the good stuff? While an air freshener can work, why use heavy chemicals when you can go for more soothing ones with a scented candle? Get woody tones and none of that fruity stuff and every breath will become a relief.

THE TUBE

If you have a TV already put it in your Man Cave. Every man cave needs a TV and the bigger the better. Men love sports. Sports are shown on TV. Big explosions and wars and gore also look much better on bigger TVs. Therefore, make sure you have a TV and get the best you can afford; you can eat out less for a few months but you cannot skimp on a TV set. Get NetFlix while you are at it. Yes, it is available in Bangladesh for around 1000 bucks a month.

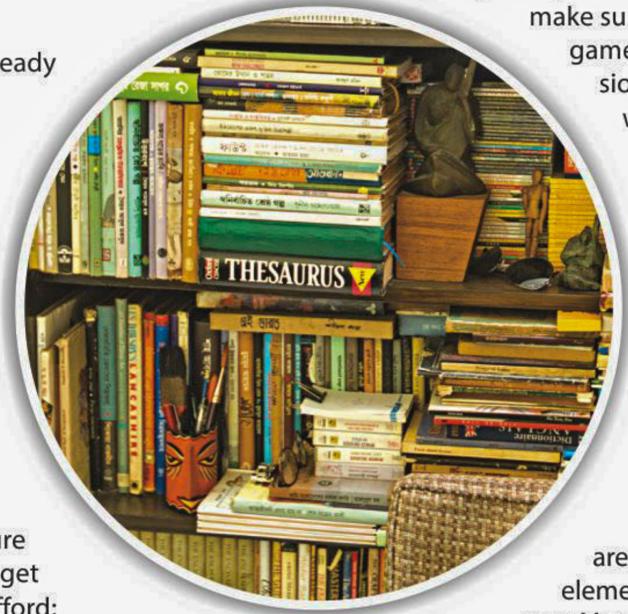

MEMORABILIA

Your Man Cave is YOUR Man Cave and therefore other distinguished gentlemen that you invite must be able to know its yours. Do not shy away from personal touches. Put in your favourite posters, figurines, medals, signed jerseys, etc. to really show what you are and what you are about. Avoid having too many personal pictures, especially of your wife and children, because a Man Cave is specifically designed to forget those things.

GAMING GALORE

An old-school arcade set-up, the latest gaming console, or darts; just make sure there are some games to play. A professional Poker set up would be a wise investment here because gentlemen do not just mingle. Rather, they prefer mingling with competition. Thus, stack up on some games and let the good times roll. Of course these are just some of the elements you need in your Man Cave. There is a lot of things you can add to your liking provided you are a Real Man. To gauge whether you are a frat boy or a Man, ask yourself how many pairs of faded, skinny, torn jeans you have. If your answer is more than zero, then you are still a frat boy.

By Osama Rahman
Photo: Sazzad Ibne Sayed
SEE PAGE 18 FOR A WOMAN'S PERSPECTIVE ON A "MAN'S CAVE"

