Online exhibition of '71 war photos starts

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Liberation War e-Archive Trust, a private organisation working for collecting historic documents of the 1971 Liberation War, yesterday opened 5,000 photos of the war for an online exhibition.

The photos representing the war scenario -- for instance, genocide by Pakistani Army and war preparation of freedom fighters -- can be seen for free at <https://www.flickr.com/photos/liberationwarbangladesh/> or on the organisation's website.

The organisers said anyone can see the photos, but cannot use those for commercial purposes.

"We organised the exhibition by following the copyright laws, and each of the photos contains its original caption and name of the photographer," Sabbir Hossain, director of the organisation, told The Daily Star.

IRIS Corp DMD held appointed IRIS as an outsourcing company for issuing MRP to about 70 lakh Bangladeshi expatriates in Malaysia, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. It not only failed to do the job but got involved in widespread irregularities and corruption.

Though the contract ended last year, thousands of Bangladeshis in those countries are yet to get their MRPs.

IRIS even did not transfer data of many Bangladeshis to the Agargaon passport office, and deposit all the money it took from the expatriates as passport fees to the Bangladesh government's exchequer.

Despite media reports, Bangladesh government didn't take any action against the company.
