Planned farming, govt support can help poultry sector flourish

Prothom Alo roundtable told

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The poultry industry has enough potential to become one of the biggest sectors as in-house demand of chicken and egg is increasing day by day, speakers told a roundtable yesterday.

Each person consumes around four kilogrammes of chicken and 100 eggs every year, but few years ago the demand was almost half, said Moshir Rahman, president of Bangladesh Poultry Industries Central Council, quoting their recent study.

The industry can meet the demand and flourish more, if the poultry farmers engage in a planned farming with supports from the government, he said.

The remarks were made at the roundtable organised by Bangla daily Prothom Alo in association with World Poultry Science Association Bangladesh Branch (WPSA-BB) at the newspaper's office in the capital.

"Poultry can play an important role in our economy as it helps to dispel unemployment and empower the women, and helps to increase overall protein consumption," said Shamsul Arefin Khaled, president of WPSA-BB.

Bangladesh Agricultural University Prof Dr Priya Mohan Das said the government needs to pay attention on vaccination to prevent diseases of chickens and follow a strict registration process of the farmers for the industry's development.

Later on the day, Helal Uddin, the investigation officer of the case, handed over the probe report and other documents to the Chief Prosecutor Office of the tribunal. They were involved with at least seven incidents of crimes, Sanaul said. The charges are: killing of 10 people, injuring two others and looting of 40 to 50 houses in Capri and Teligati village; killing of four people at Hajrakhal and Boikhali village; killing of two unarmed freedom fighters in Dhuligati village; killing of four people of Bilkul and Bichat village; killing on one man of Bilkul village; rape of four women for over a month.
