

PIERS OFF

The recent inauguration of the then president elect, now president, Donald Trump, has divided the nation into two. Protests, during the days of the inauguration of presidents are not uncommon. Piers Morgan, popular talk show host of Good Morning Britain, has faced a lot of backlash from the online community after he made a controversial statement against the women's march this Saturday. He wrote, "Imagine if there were a load of men-only marches today?"

The feminists would go crackers." He later added, "I'm planning a 'Men's March' to protest at the creeping global emasculation of my gender by rabid feminists. Who's with me?" To add fuel to the fire, Piers tweeted the crotch grabbing photo of Lily Allen, after she and he got into a Twitter feud regarding the statements made by the Trump-supporting talk show host.

MADONNA'S HATRED

Madonna's speech in the women's march, the last Saturday, clearly stated her hatred towards the current president of the United States of America. Throughout the speech she has not failed to mention how Trump was in fact a tyrant, and how all marginalized people including women are being affected. Along with vile language and controversial statements in her speech she explained her views of hatred towards Trump. In fact, her hatred has reached to such heights that she mentions that she is "outraged" and that she has "thought an awful lot of blowing up the White House."
