Nizam Hazari urges Speaker to summon Iqbal to JS

COURT CORRESPONDENT

A Dhaka court yesterday directed officer-in-charge of Motijheel Police Station to probe into the case filed by an Awami League lawmaker against Iqbal Sobhan Chowdhury, editor of The Daily Observer, for publishing a report on January 23.

After scrutinising relevant documents, Metropolitan Magistrate Md Sarafuzzaman Ansari took cognisance of the charges against Iqbal, also the media adviser to the prime minister.

According to the complaint filed by Enamul Haque, the lawmaker from Rajshahi-4, on January 31, Iqbal Sobhan, being jealous of Enamul's fame published a report headlined "Police await PM's order to crack down on drug lords" which tarnished his reputation. The daily mentioned several lawmakers' names, including Enamul, and published their photographs only to "defame them", the complainant said.

Several other cases were also filed against Sobhan in different districts for publishing the report. CALL TO SUMMON Meanwhile, ruling Awami League lawmaker Nizam Uddin Hazari in Jatiya Sangsad called upon the Speaker to summon Iqbal Sobhan to prove the news against four lawmakers over "drug dealing".

Nizam also said he would quit his job as an MP and walk out from parliament wearing garland of shoes if Iqbal can prove the news. He was speaking on the thanksgiving motion of the president's speech. Nizam, on January 30, filed a Tk 10 crore defamation case against Iqbal with a Feni court.

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The government is building 114 grand-sized luxurious apartments, at a cost of Tk 274 crore, for its secretaries and officials with similar ranks in the heart of the capital.

The lavish 3,500-square-foot flats will be constructed on about seven bighas land in Eskaton area.

According to a press release of the ministry of housing and public works, the flats will be housed in three 20-storey buildings with each building having amenities such as swimming pool, tennis court, badminton court, fitness centre, walkway and car park.

In another project in Malibagh area, the ministry will spend Tk 195 crore to build 456 more flats for other government officials.

This project will have a total of four buildings, with 114 flats in each.

Unveiling foundation stones for both the projects yesterday, Housing and Public Works Minister Mosharraf Hossain said there are more than 1.5 lakh public servants in Dhaka and only eight percent of them are provided with residential facilities.

EU keen to support new EC

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

The European Union is keen provide necessary support once the upcoming Election Commission is formed.

EU envoy in Dhaka Pierre Mayaudon told this to reporters yesterday. "Of course we will contribute if they (EC) express interest and make specific request."

The envoy was briefing diplomatic correspondents on the new "EU Development Cooperation Multiannual Indicative Programme", under which Bangladesh would receive $700 million in grants as development assistance till 2020 to support an equitable and sustainable growth, socio-economic development and improved democratic governance.

The EU traditionally helped Bangladesh EC in its different capacity building projects, but currently the EU does not have any project aiming to strengthen the EC in Bangladesh.

The EU declined to observe the Jan 5 national elections in 2014 as the main opposition BNP and its allies boycotted over allegations of massive irregularities in upazila elections and city corporation polls. The EU subsequently stopped funding in projects to strengthen the EC.

"We have to let them sit down and discuss within themselves if they express interest towards the international community, donor partners and the EU given our long-standing partnership," Pierre said.

In reply to a question on Rohingya relocation plan, the EU envoy said their understanding is that the initiative is still at the initial stage and they are very eager to learn more about the modalities, ways and means of the shifting plan.

SAHR concerned at visa denial

She said she might have been denied visa as she was vocal in the campaign against the under-construction Rampal power plant, a Bangladesh-India joint venture.

"Indian High Commission in Dhaka always invites me on India's Republic Day on January 26, but this year it has not also invited me on that occasion," Sultana Kamal told The Daily Star yesterday.

She said she visited India many times; so the denial this time was surprising.

"If I am to face such visa denial for speaking about my national interest, where is my sovereignty then?" she asked.

SAHR, headquartered in Sri Lanka, said many other prominent civil society persons faced similar circumstances due to their commitment towards the promotion and protection of human rights of the South Asian people.

SAHR has highlighted its concerns to the Saarc secretary general and the UN Special Rapporteur on Freedom of Assembly and Association.

Due to visa restrictions, civil society has limited congregational space to conduct collaborative regional activities, according to the statement signed by SAHR Chairperson Hina Jilani and Co-Chairperson Nimalka Fernando.

South Asia continues to be a "disconnected" region with people still unable to travel with comfort and ease, it said.

"Visas to visit South Asian countries are a long and arduous task for its people and an almost impossible task for Afghans and options for direct travel to capitals remain minimal," it said.

Even though regional connectivity was the overall theme of the 18th official Saarc Summit held in 2014, so far outcomes have not been substantial in achieving visa liberalisation.

"This situation is aggravated by the state centric national security protocols," SAHR said, urging the states to achieve visa liberalisation as the stepping-stone to strengthen solidarity among the people of South Asia.
