

A fashion guide for FALGUN

They say that Pohela Falgun encourages the blending of colours, and this is the time when the essence of love blossoms. Falgun attires are predominantly traditional, with women having more liberty when it comes to experimenting by adding floral ornaments such as tiaras or bangles made of eye-catching flowers. Some prefer to don terracotta jewellery, while others stand out in silver trinkets with a popular tarnished look.

As for men, most of the time they prefer to stick to the same old yellow Panjabi bought quite some years ago. What men fail to realise is that when it comes to celebrating the arrival of Spring, their chances to stand-out as smart and chic is as good as it is for women.
