"You don't take a photograph, you make it."-- Ansel Adams. Photography can be your companion and teacher for life, but you need to get to know each other and make friends first, just like in any relationship. If you know how your camera, lenses, the light and the subjects work, you will be in control of taking the picture and can develop a much more

Time: Daylong
Venue: La Galerie, Alliance Francaise
Siddhartha Talukder has explored art for a long 40 years. Though he participated in more than a 100 group exhibitions, both national and international, this exhibition titled 'Self-revelation' is his first solo stint. In the past few years, Talukder worked with different colour media like oil, water-colour, acrylic, pastel, and mixed media. His artistic language is abstract and his subjects are mainly nature and human, sometimes non-objective; and convey both traditionalism and modernism. Some of his paintings are painted over a long period of time and encapsulate many layers of musings and creative awareness. As Talukder puts it, "Each diligent artist should leave a sign of their own style even under restriction." His paintings exude hard work, dedication and introspection.
