'We've got to step up'

SPORTS REPORTER from Dambulla

Since the win in the second Test, Bangladesh's first over Sri Lanka in the longest format, the air has been heavy with anticipation of the Lions' backlash to put the Tigers in their place. Before the first ODI against Bangladesh on Saturday, skipper Upul Tharanga talked about the effort they were putting into their fielding drills and how much they were enjoying it, but their error-strewn display on the field in the first ODI was a continuation of their poor display in the Tests.

To stop Bangladesh's steadily growing momentum on tour, Sri Lanka seem to have turned to a bolstered pace attack with the recall of Nuwan Kulasekara and Nuwan Pradeep to the squad. There was also a greenish tinge on the pitch at the Rangiri Dambulla International Stadium less than 24 hours before the match was to start.

"We have included Nuwan Kulasekera and Nuwan Pradeep into the squad; the main reason was Suranga Lakmal's fitness [after he injured his hand while fielding in the first ODI on Saturday]," Sri Lanka manager Asanka Gurusinha said yesterday. "It can take 24-48 hours and we didn't want someone to come in tomorrow [Tuesday] morning. We thought to get two people in so that we have more options to look at. Up till yesterday we were not sure whether Lakmal will play but he has recovered and was okay today."

Sri Lanka had also played with three pacers in the first ODI, with Lahiru Kumara sharing the new ball with Lakmal and all-rounder Thisara Perera performing the first-change role.

"We are unlikely to make too many changes but this wicket is different to the one we played on Saturday. So taking that into account we may make a few changes," said Gurusinha, the contradiction perhaps a peek into the hosts' troubled mindset so far in the series.

Gurusinha, part of a team and management under fire from the home media, also paid due credit to his opponents. "Give credit to Bangladesh, they have a very experienced side. Their ODI squad have nearly 1000 ODIs between them; that's a lot. They have been playing together for the last seven to eight years and it helps a lot."

"Sri Lanka is in the rebuilding stage but I don't want to use that word anymore, it's up to us to make sure that we are up and running to play at the highest level. If you are playing Tests or ODIs you cannot say that we are playing a rebuilding team. You've got to step up."

Let's have more of the same: Mash

SAKEB SUBHAN from Dambulla

After the doldrums of the New Zealand series, it seems that it has taken just one match to turn Bangladesh's ODI team around this season. Without engaging in hyperbole, it can be said that Bangladesh have put in their best performance since returning to cricket last September-October with the Afghanistan and England ODIs. But even in those two series -- won 2-1 against Afghanistan and lost by the same margin against England -- there was much to be desired from Bangladesh's performances such as capitalising on top-order starts, finishing their innings strongly and taking every chance on the field.

All those problems seemed to have been solved in the first ODI. Not only did Tamim Iqbal and Shakib Al Hasan carry on with their starts, they took 90 runs in their last seven overs thanks in large part to Mosaddek Hossain and Mahmudullah Riyad, before hunting the Sri Lankans with a near flawless bowling and fielding display. Today, when they take the field for the second ODI at the Rangiri Dambulla International Stadium at 3:00pm (Bangladesh time), they will be standing on the brink of a first away series win over a higher-ranked, near-full-strength side with a match in hand.

Bangladesh had only ever won an away series against a team other than Zimbabwe once, when West Indies were forced to field a second-string team due to contract disputes in 2009. Today, however, there is every reason to believe that Bangladesh can notch another first, because since their first Test win against Sri Lanka, completed on March 19, they have looked like a team that have turned an important corner. So it was no surprise that skipper Mashrafe Bin Mortaza was counting on the team to do the same today.

"There's a chance [to clinch the series today], but for that we have to play the way we played the first match," Mashrafe said at the pre-match press conference yesterday. "They [Sri Lanka] will try very hard too, since they are 1-0 behind. They will try to push us from the start. They know how to play aggressive cricket."

In that regard, the play that Sri Lanka seems to have in mind is attacking Bangladesh with seam and swing, having recalled 181-match veteran pacer Nuwan Kulasekara and fellow national pace discard Nuwan Pradeep to the squad. Even though the Sri Lanka management have said that they were brought in as cover for Suranga Lakmal after the pace spearhead had injured his hand trying to stop a Shakib straight hit late in Bangladesh's innings on Saturday, the increased grass on the pitch suggests that pace may be their method of redress today.

But Bangladesh may even have that base covered, if the first ODI is an indication. On a slowish pitch Mashrafe himself had set back Sri Lanka with an economical and incisive first spell, while Taskin Ahmed took the important wicket of opposition skipper Upul Tharanga before Mustafizur Rahman, though expensive by his standards, finished things off with a three-wicket haul.

While Mashrafe was not totally convinced that the pitch would be a seaming one, he was confident that he has the personnel to take advantage in case it is.

"It is very difficult to say, but the confidence is high among the bowlers that are there," said Mashrafe when asked whether a seaming pitch would be more of a help than a hindrance. "It is difficult to say that it will be good for us, but I believe that we have the ability to adjust to the wicket, so we will prepare in that way."

But with or without a change in the pitch, the recent shift in Bangladesh's attitude, especially in batting which he identified as their strength in away matches, is what the captain seemed to be looking at.

"I think it is a big lesson for us, the thing I said about batsmen having to learn how to turn 50s and 60s into hundreds," said Mashrafe replying to a question about the rarity of Bangladesh scoring 300-plus away and Tamim batting out nearly 48 overs for 127.

"Other teams score 300 regularly because one batsman converts fifties into hundreds. 324 is a big stride because of this; if Tamim had scored 50 or 60 and gotten out the score would have stalled at 270 or 280. These 30 or 40 runs are the difference. Even the burst of runs at the end was an effect of that big innings."

Sanath hides behind transition excuse

SPORTS REPORTER from Colombo

Sri Lanka batsman Dinesh Chandimal had said after the 90-run defeat to Bangladesh in the first ODI that the 'transition phase' excuse cannot be used anymore to explain away the home team's failures as they have been in that zone for the last two years.

It has been two years since the first of the duo of greats, Mahela Jayawardene, retired from the ODI format. Arguably the greatest Sri Lankan batsman Kumar Sangakkara had called time a year and a half ago and Tillakaratne Dilshan, another senior albeit of lesser influence, retired in August 2016.

Contrary to what Chandimal said however, Sri Lanka Cricket chairman of selectors Sanath Jayasuriya seemed to stick with the transition phase argument at noon yesterday, during the hosts' practice session.

"We are in Sri Lanka cricket's trial session period," the legendary former opener, nicknamed the Mataru Hurricane, said. "We are trying out youngsters for the last seven-eight months after all our senior cricketers retired. So it will be a little up and down."

Having given this answer, he seemed as short of explanations as everyone else in Sri Lanka's cricket structure when asked what the difference between the two teams was, stopping short of saying 'everything'.

"The Bangladeshis are getting runs on the board. We are not, so we need to get runs on the board; then there will be no difference. We need to field well and we need to bowl well."

"There have been some really positive things from Bangladesh. As a batting unit, as a bowling unit and as a fielding unit they've been doing well. They're batting well; their experienced players are there, the top four batsmen are getting runs. That's the key. That's what we want."

If Sri Lanka are planning on doing what their opponents are doing, they will want to do it soon, as a loss today may bring them nearer to the end of the rope.

Tait quits cricket

REUTERS, Melbourne

Australian fast bowler Shaun Tait has announced his retirement from all forms of the game on Monday due to persistent elbow injuries. Tait, who had retired from first-class cricket in 2009 and one-day internationals in 2011, continued to play as a Twenty20 specialist. "I honestly wanted to play a couple more years, whether it was over in the UK or here," the 34-year-old Tait told cricket.com.au. "The elbow has pretty much gone off a cliff now, it's done and dusted. I suppose when you're not contributing on the field as much as you'd like to, it's time to finish up."

SPORTS REPORTER

Bangladesh got off to a flying start in the Max Emerging Teams Asia Cup yesterday, as they outclassed Hong Kong by eight wickets in their opening match at the Sheikh Kamal International Cricket Stadium in Cox's Bazar.

During the one-sided and short-lived affair, a heated exchange of words between home skipper Mominul Haque and Hong Kong bowler Ehsan Khan brought some excitement into a match that finished immediately after the lunch break. Apparently, Ehsan made a comment after dismissing Mominul, who in turn responded sharply.

Earlier in the encounter, Mominul along with another experienced campaigner Nasir Hossain had ripped through the Hong Kong batting order. Mominul picked up 3 wickets for 11 runs while Nasir claimed 3 for 18 runs to wrap up Hong Kong's innings for 125.

In the end however, it was Bangladesh Under-19 skipper Saif Hasan who clinched the player-of-the-match award as his unbeaten 57-run knock propelled his side to achieve the target in 16.1 overs with eight wickets in hand.

During his 47-ball innings, Saif struck nine fours and a six. "The pitch was a bit slow and it's not easy to score runs there," Saif told reporters after the match.

"We had a good preparation for the tournament and played some practice matches that helped us to make a confident start. We are thinking match by match and that's why now we are only focusing on Nepal," he continued.

Bangladesh started well in reply to Hong Kong's paltry target with Saif and Azmir Ahmed contributing 46 runs in the opening stand. Mominul Haque scored a quick-fire 21 runs from 14 balls while Nazmul Hossain was not out on 24.

Bangladesh will play their second match today against Nepal at the same venue.

Meanwhile, in the opening day's other matches, Afghanistan, India and Pakistan won their respective games in Chittagong and Cox's Bazar.

India set to seal series

AFP, Dharamsala

All-rounder Ravindra Jadeja starred with both bat and ball on the third day of the fourth Test on Monday to put India on course for a series-clinching victory against Australia in Dharamsala.

The left-hander top-scored with 63 to help India surpass Australia's first-innings total of 300 and then snared three wickets with his spin bowling as the visitors crumbled.

India's pacemen did the early damage, with Umesh Yadav picking up two wickets and Bhuvneshwar Kumar dismissing the in-form Australian skipper Steve Smith for 17 to leave the Aussies reeling on 31 for 3 inside 10 overs.

A short ball from Kumar hit the bottom edge of Smith's bat before crashing onto the stumps in spectacular fashion.

Smith ended the four-Test series with 499 runs including three centuries, only the sixth visiting batsman to have scored so many hundreds in a series in India.

The spinners then got down to business on a lively track that offered plenty of bounce, with Ravichandran Ashwin also grabbing three wickets to help his side skittle out Australia for just 137 in the final session.

At stumps the top-ranked home side were 19-0, needing 87 more to win the match and clinch the Border-Gavaskar
