NO STOPPING MOUSHUMI

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

Popular actress Moushumi Hamid has become a familiar face in Gazipur's Pubile, where she is shooting for Sumon Anwar's new drama serial "Sukhi Nir Ganj."

In the serial, she is an upfront girl whose family has been engaged in a longstanding feud with their neighbours.

"I'm now shooting only one drama serial. You cannot give your best when you try to do too many plays at the same time," Moushumi told The Daily Star.

Meanwhile, Moushumi's acclaimed "Brishtider Bari", where she plays the titular role is being aired on Banglavisión. The story's lead character Brishti, who was thought to be lost in childhood, returns home. Complications arise when another young woman who claims to be Brishti also arrives on the scene.

Apart from this, she plays the role of a working woman in the play "Sangsar" directed by Golam Sohrab Dodul and in "Live in a Metro", based on corporate life, directed by BU Shuvo.

Besides, she plays a restless village girl in Sanjeet Sarkar's "Gaya Mane Na Apni Morol", now being aired on a private television channel. Another popular series "Alashpur" is also being telecast.

Currently, she is not doing any one-hour plays.

Critically-acclaimed "Jalaler Golpo" was her last film. She is not doing any new movies for now. "If I come across a good script I will do the film," said Moushumi.

However, she has taken on a new and exciting venture as emcee for a programme on Gazi TV.

"I'm really enjoying my new venture," said Moushumi.

Yasmin Mushtari to serenade Australia

A CORRESPONDENT

Noted Nazrul exponent Yasmin Mushtari had captivated audiences in Australia with her moving performances last year, and this year the land down under has beckoned her once more to perform for them. The artiste will perform at programmes to be held at Brisbane and Canberra, and this time she is also sought after in Adelaide. Mushtari is expected to travel for the capital from Sydney on March 31, marking her first performance in the country.

Organised by ATN Canberra, the programme is titled "Gaane Jege Uthok Canberra" and will take place at the auditorium of St. John Paul College. "My repertoire will also include patriotic numbers and more, but I will place most priority on Nazrul songs," said the artiste. The remaining days prove to be quite bustling – with a show lined up on April 1 at Brisbane, organised by Society of Bangladesh Doctors in Queensland. The final performance will take place the next day at Adelaide in Burnside Community Centre, organised by Pidim Pathagar.

"To be appreciated to the extent where I would be invited once again to perform, is a matter of great honour," said the artiste, "Despite being so far away from home, Bangladeshi expatriates place great importance in upholding their roots and go through great lengths to expose the younger generation of Bengali-Australians to their cultural heritage, and these programmes certainly help build bridges between the Australian community to Bangladesh. This is a monumental task, one that they did not have to take upon themselves, but do so for the sheer love of their country."

"In Search of Purity" with Aupee Karim

A CORRESPONDENT

In a bid to raise awareness on the importance of clean drinking water, popular actor Aupee Karim embarked on a campaign titled "In Search of Purity," organised by a water purifying brand of Unilever Bangladesh Limited, Pureit, on March 22. During her participation the artiste visited various houses in Shantinagar and Gulshan.

Residents of these areas were under the impression that their drinking water has been safe for consumption. Upon research the participants of the campaign discovered poisonous pollutants such as dissolved lead, rust, and pesticides which remain in the water even after boiling it. Aupee Karim along with the team performed demos at homes to reveal these findings.

The team stated that in order to ensure the water is safe for drinking a high quality water purifier should be used.
