

ARJUN RAMPAL might end up in jail!

"A lot of research was done for the film and if I talk too much about it, then probably, I will land in jail," said the 44-year old actor while talking about his upcoming film "Daddy", which is based on the controversial life of the politician Arun Gawli. The actor also added, "To make this kind of a movie, you have to go to the people of this world, talk to them, and that's what we did. We also had to get the rights and permission from the family; making it clear to them that this is not something which is just going to be a propaganda around the character. It took a lot of time to convince the family."

In Search of Reconciliation

Brad Pitt has been ready to forgive and forget. He admits to the fact that Angelina has hurt him on several occasions. However, he wants nothing more than a sense of normalcy for his children, even if that means patching things with their mother. "Their welfare is more important than anything else in this world and he knows having a respectful relationship with Angie is what's best for those kids," states a source. They're putting their differences aside for the kids, especially when it comes to their special events. They don't want to fight in front of them. Shiloh wants them together for her 11th birthday, and she's definitely going to get that! Seems there is in fact a light at the end of the tunnel for Brangelina.

B O L D IS GOLD

Radhika Apte is often considered as the 'it girl' when it comes to being under the scanner for her bold approach in films. The "Parched" actress said that anything remotely associated with the human body can turn out to be a problem in India: a country that is "very ashamed of sexuality and physicality". Other than sex, menstruation also seems to be a very veiled topic and she is happy that her new film "Pad Man" sheds some light into the topic. Starting with the poster in the shape of a sanitary napkin, Radhika feels the film will help overcome the hesitation which surrounds a natural process that a woman goes through every month.
